Service Family Medical Care Reaches Bright D-Day; New Law Opens Door To Low Cost Treatment For Thousands

BROADENED medical care for thousands of military families became a reality this week as the new Dependent Medical Care Act went into effect on 7 December.

The Act permits wives and children of military personnel (as well as dependent husbands) to seek hospitalization in civilian facilities if they so desire, with the Government picking up most of the tab.

It also continues authority for medical care of dependents of active and retired Servicemen in military facilities, with dependents paying only a daily subsistence charge.

Another change brought about by the law permits Service families to enter Army, Navy, Air Force or Public Health Service hospitals, regardless of their own Service affiliation.

Dental treatment for dependents, which had been permissive under the old medical care rules, virtually is wiped out by the new Act. Only emergency dental care and care which is essential to medical or surgical treatment is authorized in military facilities, and only the latter in civilian facilities.

Retired Pay Boost Is Sought At ROA Meeting

A proposal for an across-the-board pay boost for all members of the Armed Forces, active and retired, is being dispatched to top Pentagon and Congressional leaders by the Retired Officers' Association.

Concluding its biennial convention in Washington, D. C., late last week, the ROA strongly recommended that pay studies and legislation "not be limited merely to pay increases for those of special qualifications."

The Association, headed by Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, USA-Ret, President of Gettysburg College, also adopted resolutions urging:

- Credit for Cadet, Midshipman and ROTC service.
- Removal of dual - employment, dual-pay restrictions.
- Medical care in civilian hospitals for retired officers and their families.
- Medical care in military facilities for Title III retirees with less than eight years' active duty.
- More realistic income limitations for widows on pension.
- Increased benefits for survivors of deceased personnel with more than 30 years' service.

Lt. Gen. Paul

In its resolution urging pay increases for Service personnel, the Association pointed out that the rising cost of living has boosted and will continue to boost the salaries of both Federal employees and employees of private industry "far above the increases granted to members of the uniformed services during the recent past."

"There is justification, for the same reason," the ROA said, "for increases in pay for members of the uniformed services."

NEW YORK CITY

EVEN though barred from its use, Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, USA, Commanding General of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, emphasized to the 2000 members of the American Ordnance Association meeting here, that his Service's record of achievement and economy in the missile field and its "unparalleled array of facilities and highly competent staff" at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., make it logical that the Army should carry forward the development of the promising Jupiter Intermediate Range Missile.

The Army Missile Chief did not say in so many words that the Air Force should devote its IRBM funds to development

WHICH SPEECH?

In introducing General Medaris at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon meeting, Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, USA-Ret., president of the New York AOA Post, joked about the Defense Department ruling which restricts the Army to tactical missiles of 200 miles range.

General Groves said General Medaris was faced with the problem of building missiles for the Army which can go 200 miles, but not 201.

"He's like a quarterback who is told he can carry the ball 10 yards, but to be careful not to carry it any further."

General Groves said that he had hoped to hear the speech General Medaris would like to give, but that he was sure "the final speech had been run through the censorship mill at the Department of Defense."

Added General Groves: "Though he may not be able to say all he would like to say, we do know he will never say anything he doesn't believe."

First RFA "Alumni" Are Eager Bunch

FT. DIX, N. J.

National Guard and Reserve commanders who receive graduates from the Army's six month active duty RFA training program will need to step lively to match the morale and enthusiasm of the teen-age soldiers.

That's the conclusion of a JOURNAL staff reporter who visited here 30 Nov. to attend "graduation" exercises for the first group of Reserve Forces Act soldiers completing training at this huge base.

It's no secret that Defense leaders are concerned that many of the youngsters will sustain a let-down feeling when they move back to hometown units after going through the rigorous active duty training.

Here at Dix, everyone agrees that leaders of the National Guard and Reserve face a formidable challenge to maintain the high level of interest in military proficiency that is demonstrated among men in the training units here.

The story is the same whether the interview is with the Commanding General, the Regimental Commander or with Pvt. R. Michael Volland of Bravo Company, 1st Training Regiment, age 17.

First Army Ordnance Meeting Monmouth Story

• Journal staff members have been busy during the past week with visits to Governors Island, N. Y., which is the home of the First Army, to sessions of the Annual American Ordnance Association in New York City, and to the Army's busy Signal Corps Center at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Next week's issue will carry special reports on these visits.

Army 7-Navy 7

Before an overflow crowd of 102,000, Army and Navy fought to a 7-7 deadlock 1 Dec. at the Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia.

The tie prompted Navy to reject a Cotton Bowl bid since Naval Academy officials did not feel the team's record of six victories, one defeat and two ties justified a post-season game.

Although the Army had a decisive statistical superiority, they fumbled eight times. Navy's recovery of five of the Cadets' fumbles proved fatal to the West Pointers' hopes of repeating their 1955 triumph.

Navy scored in the last period of the game to match a third-quarter tally by Army. The touchdowns each came on the follow-up of breaks forced by the hard-hitting defensive play that marked the bitterly fought contest.

Meanwhile, the Air Force Academy wound up their season with a 19-7 defeat at the hands of Brigham Young. That brought the Falcons' season record to six wins, two losses and one tie.

Army And IRBM

From first page—capable.

(Last week's Department of Defense Roles and Missions order not only denied to the Army the use of IRBM missiles, but also specified that in the 1958 budget the Air Force would support the development program money-wise. Apparently no decision has been made as to whether the Air Force will carry on with its own Thor IRBM, support the Army-developed Jupiter, or proceed with both. If it should decide on Thor to the exclusion of Jupiter, the Army IRBM development program would cease after next June, unless the Navy should decide to support it for seaborne use, which does not look likely at this time.)

General Medaris pointed out that his Agency is well advanced in the development of Jupiter, that the Redstone Arsenal has buildings and equipment worth $58,000,000, and a highly competent scientist-engineer-industry team headed by the famous Dr. Wernher von Braun. He stressed that there is room at Redstone "for several additional construction projects to the end of making more effective this completely integrated organization, capable of research, design, model building, fabrication of components, missile assembly, static testing—in fact, every step of the overall missile process except the actual firing."

General Medaris added: "Let me interject one fact which is frequently overlooked. The Army's record of weapons systems deployed in the field per dollar invested is outstanding. This achievement was realized on time schedules which approximated the original planning," the General said.

He reported that "as a Government agency, my organization must at all times

Army Missile Agency Forms Training Div.

Formation of a Training Division in the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., has been announced by Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, USA, the Agency commander.

The new division will have two branches, one handling training plans and requirements, the other in charge of training operations.

As outlined by General Medaris, the division's mission will be to plan, supervise and evaluate individual training for Army and Navy ballistic missile personnel, and unit training for Army Ballistic missile units. The first unit organized to handle the medium range Redstone ballistic guided missile, the 217th Field Artillery Missile Battalion, is now in training at the Agency.

The Plans Branch will develop training plans and requirements to parallel missile development within established concept and doctrine for employment and logistical support of ballistic missiles. The Operations Branch will plan for the execution of, supervise and evaluate individual and unit training of missile and support units.

General Medaris emphasized that the division will maintain close liaison with Department of the Army Staff, Navy, Engineer, Signal and Transportation Offices of his command for guidance as to their respective policies and requirements. It will also establish liaison with service schools and will determine national mission training needs.

be flexible and responsive to the needs of the country. The Army has a long history of serving others than itself; we have no prejudice about whom we serve.

"If budgetary strictures dictated the decision, existing resources and demonstrated achievements must weigh heavily in any determination of future developmental assignments. Knowing at first hand the cost of such programs in manpower, facilities and funds, the Army wants to ensure, as it always has, maximum return for every tax dollar invested."

Navy Faces Need For Building Program In Three Categories, Adm. Burke Says

NEW YORK CITY NUCLEAR power, nuclear weapons, supersonic aircraft, and guided missiles hold the promise of a new Navy of fantastic power, range and mobility "but a Navy is only as good as its ships," and the United States is falling behind in some important categories.

So Admiral Arleigh Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, told members of the American Ordnance Association at their annual banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here on 5 Dec.

Our attack carrier program is well underway, the CNO said. The Forrestal and Saratoga are now in the fleet and four others are on the way. The continuance of this program, Admiral Burke said, will provide an adequate number of modern attack carriers well into the 1965-1970 period. This will permit the older carriers to be recommissioned as support carriers for anti-submarine work. He noted that 13 nuclear submarines have been authorized.

"In other types," Admiral Burke said, "destroyers, amphibious and logistic support ships—we are not so well along. This will eventually mean a lessening in our gross capabilities as our present ships of these types cease to be combat effective. We are working on this problem, and I can only say in all frankness that we

Family Care

facilities is being administered by Maj. Gen. Paul I. Robinson, USA, Executive Director, Office for Dependents' Medical Care.

He and his staff of approximately 40 have completed or are completing agreements with physicians in all of the States and Territories on fees which will be charged, agreements with the Blue Cross organization or insurance companies for payment of hospital bills, and agreements with Blue Shield or State Medical Societies for payment of physicians' fees.

Some agreements had not been completed as the new law went into effect and General Robinson has arranged for Army Commanders to pay bills in such areas until contracts are finalized. He says this may cover a period of "60 to 90 days."

A choice of medical facilities is available to those dependents who are eligible for civilian medical care. If they are in the U. S., Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico, they may choose between a civilian facility, an Armed Force facility or a Public Health Service facility.

This choice applies where hospitalization is involved. Except for maternity care or treatment for certain injuries, the Government will not pay for civilian outpatient care. Unless dependents are prepared to pay a civilian doctor for outpatient care, the Defense Department cautions that they will be wise to continue to use their Service physician. Only if their visit to a civilian physician results in hospitalization, will certain of the physicians' fees and hospital charges be paid by the Government.

When dependents seek civilian medical care they should ask the doctor if he has agreed to accept the fee stipulated by the Government as full payment in their case. The doctor should expect the dependent to pay no fees other than those which the law stipulates and which are outlined in detail in this issue of THE JOURNAL. If dependents do pay more, the Government will pay no portion of the bill.

The Government will pay the cost of outpatient care in civilian facilities only for eligible dependents who receive:

- 1—Obstetrical care in home or office before and after delivery; if delivery is outside a hospital, the fee for this will be paid also.
  - 2—Treatment of fractures, dislocations, lacerations and similar wounds.
  - 3—Medical care before and after hospitalization for bodily injury or for cases requiring surgery.
  - 4—Diagnostic tests in connection with approved civilian out-patient treatment.
- Eligible dependents who elect to go to a civilian hospital will have the major expenses paid by the Government as follows:

- Hospitalization in semi-private accommodations (two, three or four beds), normally not exceeding 365 days, and doctors' bills during such hospitalization.
- Laboratory fees and X-rays, during hospitalization.
- Certain doctors' and laboratory and X-ray fees before and after hospitalization when hospitalization is for a bodily injury or a surgical operation.
- Complete obstetrical and maternity care, including care before and following delivery and two examinations by a doctor of the infant within 60 days after delivery.
- Special duty nursing service.

Complete details of the new program are outlined in a Pentagon pamphlet, "Medical Care for Service Dependents," prepared by the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education. This pamphlet is being distributed throughout the Armed Forces.

R. E. Robischon Joins GE

Robert E. Robischon, formerly with de Garmo, Inc., New York advertising firm, has been appointed Manager of Advertising and Sales Promotion for General Electric's Light Military Electronics Department.

In his new position, Mr. Robischon will head a broad program directed toward the department's customer areas in the military services and in airframe and electronics industries.

Here Are Details On New Family Medical Care Coverage For Services

WHO IS ELIGIBLE FOR MEDICAL CARE?

Who is eligible for the benefits of the new Dependent Medical Care Act, which went into effect on 7 Dec.?

There are six categories of dependents. All bear a close relationship to active, retired or deceased members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, or to members of the commissioned corps of either the U. S. Public Health Service or the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

If you are the husband, wife, child, parents or parents-in-law of a member of one of these Services who is on active duty, who is assigned to active-duty-for-training for more than 30 days, who is retired, or who died on active duty or after retirement, you can qualify as a Service dependent.

There are no restrictions on the dependency claims of a lawful wife or unmarried widow. There are, however, some restrictions on the other four categories, as follows:

LAWFUL HUSBAND — Must be dependent on the member or retired member for over one-half of his support.

UNREMARKED WIDOWER — Must have been dependent on the member or retired member at the time of her death for over one-half of his support because of a mental or physical incapacity.

UNMARRIED LEGITIMATE CHILD (including an adopted child or stepchild) must be:

- 1—Under 21 years of age.
- 2—Over 21, but dependent for over one-half of his support because of a mental or physical incapacity that existed before he was 21.
- 3—Under 23, but dependent for over one-half of his support because of enrollment in a full-time course of study in an institution of higher learning approved by the Secretary of Defense.

PARENT OR PARENT-IN-LAW—Must be dependent for over one-half of his or her support; must be or have been living with the member at the time of member or retired member's death.

WHAT HAPPENS TO DENTAL CARE?

Under the new Dependent Medical Care Act, which became effective this week, only limited dental care can be provided military dependents by Service facilities.

This includes emergency dental care, dental care which is necessarily a part of medical or surgical treatment, and care outside the continental U. S. or in certain designated "remote areas."

Within the continental U. S., except for remote areas, eligible dependents will receive only:

- 1—Emergency dental care to relieve pain or suffering. This does not include orthodontic or prosthodontic treatment or permanent restorative work.
- 2—Dependents are entitled to dental care which is deemed necessary by the dentist and physician as an adjunct to medical or surgical treatment; for example, treatment of fractures of the jaw and treatment of infections of dental origin.

Outside the continental U. S., and at designated remote areas within the continental U. S. where adequate civilian dental facilities are not available, routine dental care is authorized. This includes the same general operative, surgical and prosthodontic treatment which active-duty Servicemen are furnished.

Remote areas will be designated by the Service Secretary and approved by the Secretary of Defense. Normally, an area will be considered "remote" only if there is no community with adequate civilian facilities within 30 miles.

Dental care which is provided to dependents in Service dental facilities will be free of charge.

No civilian dental care will be provided at Government expense unless it is provided as an adjunct to medical or surgical treatment for which the dependent is an inpatient in a civilian hospital. Such care will not include removable or fixed prosthodontic restorations.

MAJ. GEN. PAUL I. ROBINSON, Executive Director of the Office for Dependents' Medical Care, meets with representatives from the Services to discuss matters pertaining to Medicare. Sitting in on the inter-Service session were representatives from the Surgeons General of the Army, Navy, Air Force; Public Health Service; and officers of General Robinson's staff. (L to r) are Lt. Col. Ralph J. Richards, Lt. Col. Ernest G. Rivas, Col. Allen R. Crow, USAF, Col. James E. Graham, General Robinson, Col. W. E. Neiman, USA, Capt. Guy E. Stahr, USN, Dr. A. P. Sackett, Public Health, Maj. Paul A. Lavault, Lt. Col. Cecil Hemperly, and Miss Rita Lynch, stenographer.

WHAT WILL YOU PAY?

IN MILITARY OR USPH HOSPITALS—All dependents will pay $1.75 a day for each day hospitalized. The purpose of this charge is to reimburse the Government for meals.

IN CIVILIAN HOSPITALS—All dependents admitted to civilian hospitals will pay $1.75 a day, or the first $25 of the total cost, whichever is greater. There are some additional authorized charges as follows:

For a private hospital room, dependents will pay the above charge, plus

1—25 per cent of the difference between the cost of the private room and a semi-private room, if the attending physician certifies that you need a private room. (Thus, if a semi-private room costs $12.00 per day and a private room costs $20.00 per day, you will pay $2.00 per day additional as your share of this cost.)

2—The entire difference between the cost of the private room and a semi-private room if you request the private room merely for your convenience. (Thus, if a semi-private room costs $12.00 per day and a private room costs $20.00 per day, you will pay $8.00 per day additional.)

For private duty care by a registered nurse, you will pay the first $100 of the cost and 25 per cent of the charges over $100 when the attending physician certifies that you need this care.

For treatment of injuries (fractures, dislocations, lacerations, and so forth) outside of a hospital, you will pay the first $15 of the total charges in each case. Multiple injuries resulting from one accident will be considered one injury.

For obstetrical care, you will pay the first $15 of the charges for delivery in a home or office, if you are not hospitalized later.

For diagnostic tests, you will pay all costs above $75 for tests before hospitalization for physical injury or surgery, or all costs above $50 for tests after hospitalization for physical injury or surgery.

AIRBORNE NURSE

The first Army Nurse ever selected for airborne duty reported for training to the 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., on 3 Dec.

2d Lt. Robert M. Stauffer, assigned to William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso, Tex., volunteered for duty as an airborne nurse.

Two other male Army Nurse Corps officers, yet to be selected, will serve with Lieutenant Stauffer on a surgical team organic to the division. Their place on the surgical team is part of an effort to provide closer medical support and greater assistance to the physician than has been possible with the less skilled medical technicians.

WHERE CAN YOU RECEIVE THIS CARE?

Some dependents are eligible for medical care in either civilian facilities or Service (Army, Navy, Air Force, Public Health Service) facilities. Others are eligible for care only in Service facilities.

The following chart (at right) shows where you can go to receive medical care if you are a dependent:

	Civilian Facilities	Service Facilities
Lawful wife of active Serviceman .....	Yes	Yes
Lawful children under 21 of active duty Serviceman .....	Yes	Yes
Dependent parents or parents-in-law .....	No	Yes
Dependent lawful husband of active duty Servicewoman ....	Yes	Yes
Lawful children not past 23d birthday (if dependent) enrolled full-time in an approved institution of higher learning ....	Yes	Yes
Unmarried widow or dependent widower of deceased Service member who died while on active duty or retired status ....	No	Yes
Children past 21st birthday (unmarried) dependent upon Serviceman, and incapable of self-support because of physical or mental incapacity, which developed before 21st birthday ....	Yes	Yes

Far East Charities Receive Over $500,000

American soldiers stationed in Japan and Korea have donated more than $500,000 to charitable institutions in the Far East during the past year.

Principal beneficiaries are the orphans and underprivileged children of Japan and Korea who periodically receive clothes, food, money and services from their Army sponsors.

Almost every company assigned to Army Forces Far East and Eighth Army has its own adopted "home" where these American ambassadors of good will give freely of time and assets to support groups of children.

These contributions are in addition to the organized Red Feather or Red Cross fund drives for American charities and are more personal, as far as the soldier is concerned. They are usually spontaneous.

The 1st Cavalry Division in Japan is presently contributing to 21 orphanages. During 1956, they also made additional emergency contributions of money and bags of rice following extensive fires in Japanese villages.

One report from South Korea shows 70 orphanages receiving support from American soldiers. It is estimated that well over $25,000 each month is donated in clothes, money, supplies and food to hospitals, orphanages and other charities in that war-torn Republic.

In addition, nearly every "wife club" in Japan has a charity. Many of them adopt existing orphanages and sew clothes or curtains or contribute money or furniture.

With the approach of Christmas, the traditional time for charities, donations are being accelerated amid plans for Christmas parties, gifts, and in many cases invitations to the orphanages for the children to visit soldiers' homes during the Christmas holidays.

Dedicate AAA Chapel

Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, Chief of Army Chaplains, officiated at the dedication of the 99th AAA Battalion in Detroit 25 Nov.

HOW TO IDENTIFY YOURSELF

Eligible dependents requesting care at either Armed Forces or Public Health Service facilities or in civilian medical facilities, under the terms of the new Dependent Medical Care Act which became effective 7 Dec., will be required to show satisfactory identification.

Between now and next July, any of the following means of identification will be acceptable for this purpose:

- 1—Dependent's Identification Card—DD Form 720
- 2—Privilege Identification Card—DA Form 999
- 3—Dependent's Identification Card for Medical Care—NavPers Form 1343
- 4—Application to U. S. Public Health Service for Treatment of Coast and Geodetic Survey Dependents—CGS Form 832
- 5—Application to U. S. Public Health Service for Treatment of Coast Guard Personnel—Form CG-2533 or CG-2534
- 6—Dependents Authorization for Medical Care—DD Form 1173

In circumstances when none of these means of identification is available, civilian medical facilities may permit the dependent to fill out DA Form 1863, which is a Statement of Services Provided by Civilian Medical Sources, and Armed Forces and USPHS facilities may accept a statement obtained from the dependent, parent, sponsor or guardian.

On and after 1 July 1957, the primary means of identification will be the Dependents Authorization for Medical Care—DD Form 1173.

To secure these cards for their dependents, active duty and retired members of the Armed Forces will fill out DD Form 1171, and the survivors of deceased members will fill out DD Form 1172. These application forms will be made available by each Service between now and 30 June 1957.

U. S. Army

High Dutch Decoration Goes To Gen. Ruffner

Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, Chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Germany, has been made a Grand Officer of the Royal Order of Orange Nassau by Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

The decoration is the highest which the Netherlands Government can bestow on a foreign officer. It was presented to General Ruffner for his leadership during the Korean fighting in 1951. At that time he commanded the 2d Infantry Division, with which a Dutch Infantry battalion fought.

Maj. Gen. Ruffner

The Netherlands award was presented by The Netherlands Ambassador to West Germany, U. S. Ambassador James B. Conant and U. S. Minister William C. Trimble were present for the occasion together with other dignitaries and ranking officers of both the Dutch Government and the United States.

In accepting the award, General Ruffner called attention to the brilliant and courageous fighting of The Netherlands battalion which, he noted, won the U. S. Presidential Unit Citation four times during the Korean conflict.

B/G Wilson Becomes Deputy Chief Engrs.

Brig. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, jr., USA, Assistant Chief of Engineers for Military Construction, has been named Deputy Chief of Engineers for Construction. It was announced by Maj. Gen. E. C. Itchner, USA, Chief of Engineers.

Maj. Gen. Charles G. Holle, who had been Deputy Chief of Engineers for Construction since June 1955, has assumed a newly created post of Special Assistant to the Chief of Engineers. In this position he will serve as permanent Chairman of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors; alternate to the Secretary of the Army on the St. Lawrence River Joint Board of Engineers, and representative of the Chief of Engineers on matters relating to the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Brig. Gen. Edward A. Brown, jr., who has been Acting Deputy Chief of Public Information and Deputy Chief of Information and Education, Department of the Army, since August 1955, succeeds General Wilson as Assistant Chief of Engineers for Military Construction.

Classmates Retire

Two West Point '18 classmates, Major Generals Walter J. Muller and John H. Stokes, jr., retired at the Presidio of San Francisco, on 30 Nov.

Upon retirement, General and Mrs. Muller, the former Miss Frances Rourke of Savannah, Ga., will make their home at 1800 Black Mountain Road in Hillsborough, Calif. A son, Walter, jr., was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in June of this year and is now stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga. General and Mrs. Muller's daughter, Elizabeth Anee, is married to Capt. William A. Hudson, USA, also stationed at Ft. Benning.

After serving as Military Attache at Budapest, Hungary, in 1947, General Stokes returned to the Presidio of San Francisco in 1949 where he was assigned as California Military District Chief of Staff until July of 1950 when he was appointed Sixth Army Chief of Staff. He left this assignment in August 1951 to become the Assistant Chief of Staff for Plans, Policy and Operations of the Southern Command of NATO at Naples, Italy. He returned to Washington in December of 1953 and took over command of the Military District of Washington. In February of 1956 he was named Chief of Military History, Office of the Army Chief of Staff, where he remained until his assignment to Headquarters Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, on 3 November 1956 as Deputy Commanding General.

General Stokes and his wife, the former Marion E. Mitchell of San Francisco, have one son, John H. Stokes, III, who is a first classman at the U. S. Military Academy.

Logistics I. G.

The Army has established a new Office of Logistics Inspector General, in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Lt. Gen. Carter Magruder, USA.

Creation of the Office was one result of a survey of Army Inspector General activities made at the direction of the Chief of Staff. Among the recommendations of the survey group, which was monitored by the Comptroller of the Army and included The Inspector General, was that the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics set up an Inspector General on his staff and that responsibilities for detailed inspections of contract administration be transferred from The Inspector General to the Logistics Inspector General.

The over-all responsibilities of the new office have been defined as responsibility for inquiring into and reporting to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics upon any and all matters which pertain to the economy and efficiency of activities under the latter's direction and control.

In performance of the Procurement Inspection function the Logistics Inspector General will continue the field offices which the Office of The Inspector General set up for that purpose at New York City, Chicago, and Oakland, Calif.

Col. Houston V. Evans, USA, who was formerly the Inspector General of the Signal Corps, is the first Logistics Inspector General.

Soldiers at Benning Safer Than Civilians

A recent survey shows that soldiers training at Ft. Benning, Ga., suffer less than 50 per cent the number of accidents of the average civilian.

According to Norman Evans, the Infantry Center's safety director, post military personnel suffer only 25 injuries per 1000 persons a year from various causes. The national average is 56 injuries.

Meanwhile, it has been announced that Certificates of Achievement for safety have been presented to the 54th Medical Group and the Infantry Center Ordnance Section.

The certificates are presented quarterly to the major unit and technical service chosen for their outstanding work in their accident prevention program.

An intensive safety advertising campaign organized by Maj. Thomas J. Wolfe, 54th safety officers, resulted in the greatest net reduction in the personnel injury and Army vehicle accident rate of any major post organization. The Ordnance Section earned the honor by not having any disabling injury or vehicle accident in 1956.

All-Army Model Airplane Meet Set For August

The Army will hold the first Model Airplane Meet under sponsorship of The Adjutant General in August 1957.

This contest, which will be sanctioned by the Academy of Model Aeronautics, will be held at a military installation to be announced at a later date.

The meet, to be conducted at all levels of command as part of the Army Crafts Program, is designed to provide recreation and entertainment for troops, encourage the formation of model airplane clubs and stimulate interest in Army Aviation.

The contest is open to all members of the Army on active duty over 90 days, except those in training centers or schools where participation would delay completion of training.

MAJ. GEN. EDWIN H. J. CARNS, USA, 1st Cavalry Division Commanding General, greets Col. Robt. B. Skinner, MC USA, Tokyo Army Hospital Commanding Officer, during the first visit to the hospital facilities by General Carns.

New WAC Deputy Daughter of General

Appointment of Lt. Col. Anne E. Sweeney as Deputy Director, Women's Army Corps, effective 3 Jan. 1957, is announced by Secretary of the Army William B. Brucker.

Colonel Sweeney succeeds Lt. Col. Emily C. Gorman, who completes the normal four-year tour of duty and is assigned to staff work at the Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va.

Secretary Brucker announced last week that Lt. Col. Mary L. Milligan, now at CONARC, would be advanced to Colonel and made WAC Director on 3 January. She succeeds Col. Irene O. Galloway, who will revert to permanent lieutenant colonel rank and who will be reassigned to CONARC.

Colonel Sweeney is the daughter of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney, USA-Ret., who resides at 127 Mallorca Way, San Francisco. A brother, Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney, jr., USAF, is Commanding General, Eighth Air Force, Strategic Air Command, Westover AFB, Mass.

The newly appointed Deputy Director is now WAC Staff Advisor, Headquarters, Sixth Army, Presidio, San Francisco.

Before starting enlisted service in the WAAC at its inception in July 1942, Colonel Sweeney, an English major during two years of undergraduate work at Vassar College, had been women's editor for the Salt Lake Telegram, Utah.

She was graduated in the fifth Officer Candidate Class at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa. During the war she was a public relations officer and was graduated from the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. In 1945 she served as an Operations and Training staff officer with the South East Asia Command and China Theater.

Returning to civilian status at war's end, Colonel Sweeney did public relations work for the San Francisco Bay Area Council until July, 1948, when she resumed her military career as Executive Officer WAC Training Center, Camp Lee, Va. This was followed by duty in Washington with the Plans and Operations Division, General Staff.

A THERAPIST FIRST

The first Army physical therapist to be promoted to lieutenant colonel while working in an Army hospital Lt. Col. Olena M. Cole, USA, Chief of the Physical Therapy section at Brooke Army Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Only other lieutenant colonels have been those serving as chief of the Physical Therapy Section in the Office of the Surgeon General.

For her work with the Army in Europe from 1943 to 1945, she received the Bronze Star Medal and the Army Commendation Ribbon. Since then she has served in hospitals in the United States and came to Brooke from Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif.

THE CORD HAS BEEN CUT

Man has at last severed the tie that bound him to Mother Earth. Gyroscopic stable platforms and inertial navigation systems can now free him from all terrestrial sources of information... In the outer regions, where the terms Up, Down, East and West are meaningless, these fantastically accurate instruments compute position, course, and attitude entirely without reference to maps based upon the earth's surface... Lear has pioneered the design and production of inertial stabilization and navigation systems. Today these devices guide and stabilize man's most advanced missiles and aircraft. Tomorrow they will orient and control spacecraft yet to be developed.

12 Sixth Fleet Ships Return To East Coast

Following completion of tours of duty with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, 11 destroyers and a fleet oiler returned to their home ports on the East Coast on 5 December.

Back at Norfolk, Va., are the destroyers W. L. Lind, Hank, English and Borle, the Summer, Moale and Ingraham, the C. S. Serry and the Nantahala, a fleet oiler.

At Newport, R. I., are the Destroyer Division 121 ships H. Purvis, H. R. Dickson and Gainard. The fourth ship of this division, the Compton, is en route to Newport from the Persian Gulf by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

USN Commissions Floating Lab To Test "SINS"; Her Equipment Is "Fantastic"

Commissioning of the experimental navigational ship USS Compass Island on 3 December marked a major step "toward a capability that no Navy has heretofore possessed," according to Assistant Navy Secretary for Air Garrison Norton.

The Navy Secretary hailed the 17,000-ton converted Mariner-class cargo ship, Garden Mariner, as "the forerunner of a fleet of nuclear-powered ballistic missile-launching vessels, both submarine and surface types."

Development of ships which can fire missiles accurately independent of any shore based installation is one of the Navy's top priority projects.

The Compass Island, "equipped with the most fantastic array of navigation instruments ever assembled in a ship," is commanded by Cdr. James A. Dare, USN, former Executive Officer of the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oaks, Md.

RAdm. William F. Raborn, USN, Director, Special Projects, Bureau of Ordnance, is in charge of Fleet Ballistic Missile development.

THE FLOATING LABORATORY will be used in development of a navigation system independent of shore-based aids.

Key to the all-weather, all-latitude, day and night capability is the Ship Inertial Navigational System (SINS) which is based on investigations and research performed by Dr. Charles S. Draper of the Instrumentation Laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SINS determines ship position (latitude and longitude), true north, and ship speed. To check and correct SINS, the Compass Island carries several miniature observatories whose trackers, once pointed to a heavenly body, automatically adjust to give continuous information for determining position.

The small observatories are mounted on a 67-ton navigational tower slightly forward of the ship's superstructure.

The ship has a unique airfoil-shaped dome appended to the bottom of its hull which houses special sonar equipment. This sonar gear was developed by the Bureau of Ships and the General Electric Corp., to read the ship's speed.

THE COMPASS ISLAND also is equipped with fins for roll-stabilization. If she and a ship of the same type were in the same waters, the sister ship would roll 15 degrees while the Compass Island would roll only about a degree and one-half—a 90 per cent reduction in roll.

These devices, Secretary Norton told his audience at the commissioning ceremony at the New York Naval Shipyard, are "only the beginning."

He said the Navy soon will be testing in the Compass Island tracking devices which will be able to see the sun, moon and a few special stars, known as radio stars, by detecting the radio signals emitted by these heavenly bodies. Thus, he explained, celestial navigation will be possible even when the sky is entirely covered with clouds.

In addition, he said the Navy hopes the ship will be able to locate its position by taking radar ranges on the moon.

USN Picks 120 Officers For Submarine School

The Navy has selected 120 ensigns and lieutenants (jg) for training as submarine officers. They will be sent to the Submarine School, New London, Conn., for the class which convenes 2 January.

The Navy said that individual notifications of selection or non-selection will not be issued to applicants who did not make the grade. Ensigns and lieutenants who applied for the course and whose names do not appear on the list at the end of this story can assume that they were not selected.

At the same time, the Navy announced that it is seeking applications from lieutenants (jg) with dates of rank of 1 Jan. 1955, or later, and ensigns with dates of rank before 1 July 1956, for the July 1957 class. Applications must reach the Bureau of Naval Personnel by 1 March. Eligibility requirements are contained in BuPers Instruction 1520.6G, dated 6 March 1956.

NAVY FLIGHT SETS NEW RECORD

Allison Turbo-Prop-powered "Tradewind" opens new era in vital Pacific Fleet service

A few weeks ago the U.S. Navy opened a new chapter in aviation history when its giant aerial tanker—the Convair R3Y-1 Tradewind—set a new trans-pacific speed record for water-based aircraft. On its maiden round-trip flight from Alameda, California, to Keehi Lagoon, Honolulu, Air Transport Squadron two [VR-2] firmly established the Navy's long-standing belief in turbo-prop power as the jet age's most flexible and efficient power source. On its return flight the Tradewind covered the nearly 2,500 miles over water span in 6¾ hours, far surpassing the record on this route for this type aircraft.

Powered by four Allison twin power section turbo-prop engines driving contrarotating AeroProducts Propellers, the Tradewind boasts nearly 24,000 horsepower—can lift its 80-ton weight from the water in 30 seconds, climb quickly to cruising altitude and cover more than 2,000 miles nonstop at speeds in excess of 350 miles per hour.

What makes this astounding aerial feat possible is the development of a whole new concept of powered flight—the culmination of 10 years of research by the Navy, Convair and Allison. It required the solving of one of the most complex engineering challenges in aviation history—perfecting a gas turbine engine of advanced design and mating it with a six-bladed contrarotating propeller.

The R3Y-1 Tradewind will refuel in flight eight jet fighters—four at a time—at speeds of more than 350 miles per hour. This new addition to the vast Pacific Fleet, the R3Y-1 will provide a vital service to our fast carrier task forces, further extending the range and striking power of the Navy's mighty air arm.

R3Y-1 demonstrates versatility of Turbo-Prop power
in jet-age transportation

Record-breaking Navy R3Y-1 is powered by four T40 Allison Turbo-Prop engines like this—each having twin power sections driving contrarotating AeroProducts Propellers. Both power sections in each engine give the R3Y-1 full power for rapid take-off and climb to cruising altitude. To gain best fuel economy for cruising, one power unit may be shut off entirely, allowing the other to operate at its most efficient setting. Either power section operates all six blades contrarotatively.

AF Will Promote 842 To Lt. Colonel

The Air Force will announce on 10 Dec. the names of 842 majors selected for promotion to temporary colonel.

Previously announced were approximately 4000 selections to captain and about 2000 to major.

The selections to lieutenant colonel include 760 line officers.

Special category officers promoted to lieutenant colonel on the new list include three Chaplains, 40 Medical Corps officers, 25 Medical Service officers, 3 Nurses, one member of the Medical Specialist Corps, five Dental officers and five Veterinarians.

The first promotions become effective 10 Dec., and the remainder will be promoted in the increments through 30 April 1957.

Col. Morrison Advisor To Gen. Eaton of 10th

Col. Erwin G. ("Morie") Morrison, USAF, has become Special Adviser for Reserve Affairs to Maj. Gen. Robert E. L. Eaton, USAF, Tenth Air Force commander.

He comes to Selfridge AFB, Mich., after two years in Turkey as public information division chief of Allied Land Forces Southeastern Europe (ALFSEE) and Sixth Allied Tactical Air Force (Six ATAF) at joint headquarters in Izmir, where General Eaton formerly headed Six ATAF.

For three years before that, Colonel Morrison was information chief of Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio. He received a Commendation Ribbon for helping make "More Air Force Per Dollar" AMC's trademark.

He is a former San Francisco newspaper sports columnist-cartoonist, television writer-actor and author of four books.

Colonel Morrison and his wife, Virginia, have a son, Lt. James S. Morrison, 26, a jet pilot with the 496th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron at Hahn AB, Germany, where he has been stationed for the last two of his five years in the Air Force; and a daughter, Mrs. B. C. Woodham, jr., Memphis, Tenn.

AF TV In Germany

Approval has been granted for Air Force television stations for Landstuhl and Bitburg air base areas in Germany, and their construction is currently underway. Both stations will go on the air after the first of the year.

The Bitburg area station will be located at Spangdahlem Air Base, and will service both Bitburg and Spangdahlem Air Base and the nearby Air Force housing areas.

The Landstuhl area station will be located near the base and will service Landstuhl, Ramstein and Sembach Air Bases, local organizations of the Army's Western Area Command, and all U. S. housing areas in the immediate vicinity.

The range of both stations will be limited to a ten-mile radius from the location of the stations. The studios will telecast on ultra high frequencies instead of the commonly used very high frequency. This precludes them from interfering with telecasting by German stations.

Alaskan Command Has 10th Birthday on 1 Jan

The Alaskan Command will observe its 10th anniversary the first of the year. The oldest of the joint commands established by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was officially created 1 Jan. 1947.

Present commander-in-Chief, Alaska, is Lt. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, jr., USAF. Since Alaska is primarily an Air Force theatre, the Alaskan Command is normally headed by an Air Force general officer.

Component services and their present commanders are: the Alaskan Air Command at Elmendorf AFB, commanded by Maj. Gen. James H. Davies, USAF; the U. S. Army, Alaska at Ft. Richardson, commanded by Maj. Gen. James F. Collins, USA, and the Alaskan Sea Frontier, at Kodiak, commanded by Rear Adm. Ira E. Hobbs, USN.

The mission of the Alaskan Command is the defense of Alaska and the protection of the U. S. from attack through the polar regions and Alaska. General Armstrong is responsible for planning, operations, administration and logistical matters necessary to meet the requirement of his mission.

CONAC Views Air Reserve & ANG Roles

Operational readiness status of the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard were reviewed at a two-day Continental Air Command Commanders conference at Mitchell AFB, N. Y., 28-29 Nov.

Other subjects on the CONAC Commanders Conference agenda included the AF Non-Prior Service Recruiting Program, the AF Reserve Construction Program, Flying Safety Program and other administrative matters.

Presiding over the conference was Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, Commander Continental Air Command.

CONAC commanders attending the conference included Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, First Air Force, Maj. Gen. Robert B. Landry, Fourth Air Force; Maj. Gen. Robert E. L. Eaton, Tenth Air Force; Maj. Gen. George G. Finch, Fourteenth Air Force.

Representing USAF Headquarters were Maj. Gen. Jacob E. Smart, AF Assistant Vice Chief of Staff; G. E. Ramsey, jr., AF Assistant Comptroller; Maj. Gen. C. J. Bondley, jr., AF Director of Supply and Services; and Maj. Gen. W. E. Hall, AF Assistant Chief of Staff for Reserve Affairs.

Other USAF Headquarters representatives included Brig. Gen. E. S. Ligon, jr., AF Director of Personnel Planning and Col. Richard Fellows, Chief of the AF's Programming Division.

Maj. Gen. W. P. Wilson, Deputy Chief of the National Guard Bureau represented the Air National Guard.

Also attending the conference were Brig. Gen. J. W. McCauley of Air Defense Command, Col. Lester R. Ferriss and Maj. Saleem Aswad of the Military Air Transport Service, and Lt. Col. Gerge S. Cook of Tactical Air Command.

GENERAL CURTIS E. LEMAY, commander-in-chief, Strategic Air Command, presents the top prize in SAC's first fighter competition, the Auton Trophy, to Col. Richard O. Hunziker, USAF, commander of the winning wing. Colonel Hunziker's 506th Strategic Fighter Wing from Tinker AFB, Okla., scored 54,563 points out of a possible 91,000 to capture seven of the ten trophies offered.

In addition to the Auton Trophy, the 506th won a trophy for high scoring wing in bombing. Individual trophies won by 506th pilots were awarded for individual navigation and for the pilots of the high scoring element of two aircraft. Two trophies also were awarded to the crew chiefs of the aircraft of the high scoring element.

Other trophies awarded were for high scoring wing in navigation, won by the 31st SFW, Turner AFB, Ga.; high scoring wing in maintenance, won with a perfect score by the 27th SFW, Bergstrom AFB, Texas; and high individual in bombing, won by 1st Lt. Donald L. Frazier of the 407th SFY, Malmstrom AFB, Montana. The most sparkling individual performance of the competition was turned in the last day of the meet by Capt. Roger L. Cooper, high scoring individual in navigation. Cooper's total time error for two targets was only three seconds.

Five strategic fighter wings competed in the meet. Each wing was required to deploy a striking force of 36 Republic F-84F Thunderjets to Offutt and from there fly a prescribed 1300 mile combat mission across five midwestern states. Each wing was required to be refueled in flight, to navigate to two targets and to bomb one. Wings were scored on maintenance, navigation and bombing.

The Auton Trophy is named in honor of Brig. Gen. Jesse L. Auton, who was killed at Offutt in a plane crash in 1952 while chief of SAC fighter operations. The huge silver trophy was donated by Republic Aviation Corporation, makers of the F-84F.

Lt. Col. Wetzel Heads B-47 Bomb Squadron

Lt. Col. Albert J. Wetzel, USAF, former Executive Officer to Assistant Secretary of Defense (Engineering), Frank D. Newbury has taken command of the 44th bomb squadron of the 40th bomb wing at Smoky Hill AFB, Kans.

Col. Wetzel was assigned to lead the B-47 squadron after attending the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

While assigned at the Pentagon, he served as Air Force representative on the Defense Department guided missile program, and on the Military Liaison Committee to the Atomic Energy Commission. He was in charge of guided missile development at the Holloman Air Development Center at Alamogordo, N. M. He holds a master's degree in aeronautical engineering from Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

Last C-97 Delivered

The last of 888 C-97 Stratofreighters has been delivered to the Air Force at the Boeing plant in Renton, Wash. and flown to Lincoln AFB, Nebr., where it joined the 98th Air Refueling Squadron of the Strategic Air Command.

The delivery marked the end of the Stratofreighter program of more than 12 years at the Renton plant.

Holiday Greetings

Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles and General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, Chief of Staff, have sent the following Christmas messages to all Air Force members and their families.

Secretary Quarles' message:

"During the sixteen months that I have served as your Secretary I have been privileged to meet many of you personally and see you performing your duties in many parts of the world. Performing those duties with a loyalty and devotion that never ceases to quicken my pride in you and my faith in your ability to fulfill the Air Force mission. I also have the deepest appreciation of the sacrifices you have made during the past year in helping to maintain the security of our country.

"As the old year draws to a close may the Christmas spirit strengthen within you the satisfaction that comes from knowing you serve a just and worthwhile cause. For, on your efforts are based the free world's hopes for future, merrier Christmases. To all of you, at home or in distant lands, go my sincere best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

General Twining's Christmas greeting:

"At this Christmastime we in the United States Air Force feel more than ever the responsibility of our position as a deterrent to world conflict. I trust that in the year ahead world conditions will become so stabilized that the possibility of future wars will become increasingly remote and peace will shed its blessings on the earth.

"My trust is based on the sure knowledge of your accomplishments and achievements in the past and in the firm conviction that my faith is well placed in you. Wherever your post, whatever your assignment, I salute both military and civilian members of the Air Force family and wish for each of you and your loved ones a Merry Christmas and a New Year which will fulfill your every hope."

AFROTC Assignment Changes

AFROTC cadets who are eliminated from the Advanced Course flying categories may now elect to continue in the AFROTC program and be commissioned and assigned directly to the Reserve Forces.

The eight-year Reserve commitment will begin as of the date of commissioning. Officers may expect call to six months active duty for training within 90 days after being commissioned.

This policy is applicable to all AFROTC cadets who complete the requirements for commissioning on or after 1 Oct. 1956.

Joins Columbia Faculty

Maj. Mervin A. Chamberlain, USAF, has been appointed Professor of Air Science at Columbia University, it is announced by Dr. Grayson Kirk, president. He succeeds Lt. Col. Robert J. Haggstrom, USAF, as detachment commander of Columbia's Air Force ROTC Unit.

The unit, established in 1951 after the outbreak of the Korean War, is in its final year at Columbia. It will be disbanded next June upon the commissioning of its graduating cadets.

Collier Trophy Goes To Boeing and USAF

William M. Allen, president; his associates at Boeing Airplane Company; General Nathan F. Twining, and the U. S. Air Force jointly have been chosen recipients of the Collier Trophy Award for "the greatest achievement in aviation in 1955," it is announced by Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, jr., USAFR, president of the National Aeronautic Association.

According to a citation accompanying the award, the Boeing recipients were honored for "conception, development and quantity production of America's first all-jet, long-range bomber, the Boing B-52 Stratofortress." General Twining, chief of staff, and the Air Force were cited for sponsoring and making the aircraft operational in 1955 as a "powerful weapon of peace."

Colonel Lanphier said that "the successful entry of this aircraft into service resulted from almost 10 years of ingenious engineering research and development and hinged directly on the solving of many complex new problems in virtually all of the sciences—in aerodynamics, structural design, systems design and application, metallurgy and process development."

"The Air Force's continued faith in the weapon being produced," he said, "has resulted in a B-52 production program now encompassing two major factory complexes and thousands of subcontractors in every state of the Union—the largest single peacetime aviation program in history."

Frederick C. Crawford, chairman of the board of Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, was chairman of the 21-member committee that selected the 1955 Collier Award winners.

Gen. Twining To Lecture

General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, Chief of Staff, will deliver a Wright Memorial lecture to the Cadet Wing of the U. S. Air Force Academy at its temporary site on Lowry AFB, Denver, Colo., 18 Dec.

FAIRCHILD C-123

TAKES THE LOAD OFF HIS MIND

When the Air Force moves bulk supplies and equipment or personnel, or virtually any equipment or men anywhere, they know they can put their confidence and their payload into Fairchild C-123's.

Especially designed to airlift large consignments of men and equipment with the greatest flexibility of movement, the C-123 needs only short unprepared fields to land and takeoff.

Easy-loading rear ramp shortens ground time, and the C-123's high-lift characteristics make possible quick, sure delivery to the rough spots, inaccessible or impractical to reach by any other aircraft.

For a wide range of performance, the Fairchild C-123 is a versatile, rugged transport that takes any load required in tough logistics assignments—another proven example of the big job capability that Fairchild builds into its aircraft.

NATO and Troop Strength. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson leaves to attend the 11 December NATO conference in Paris fresh from budget meetings in Washington and discussions with President Eisenhower in Augusta. There is a distinct relationship between the two sets of meetings, a relationship which may give Mr. Wilson some embarrassing moments in Paris.

There is every indication that the Administration's progressive reductions in ground force strength will be carried on a step forward in the 1958 budget now in the making. There is the further threat in the Defense Secretary's statement on roles and missions (see last week's JOURNAL) that a reduction in the Tactical Air Force is in the making. These two combat elements are the backbone of the United States' contributions to NATO's fighting strength. These facts, taken together with Russia's propaganda offer to withdraw its armed forces from occupied areas if we will pull out of Europe could well lead to difficulties in maintaining NATO's effectiveness. If other NATO members believe we are planning reductions in our ground and air strength in Europe—and they will question Mr. Wilson closely on this score—there is no doubt but that they will be disposed to do the same.

The cement that will keep NATO strong comes from Russia's savage suppression in Hungary. Already that demonstration of militarism has brought a turn-about in Iceland's Social Democrat Party's attitude toward U. S. forces on that strategic island—they are now willing that we should stay there. But we cannot expect the European powers to keep up their NATO forces if we plan to reduce ours.

The Industry-Defense Team. The willingness—eagerness in fact—of leading industrialists and scientists throughout the nation to devote time, energy and money to promote the interests of the National Defense was demonstrated outstandingly in the 38th Annual Preparedness Meeting of the American Ordnance Association 5 December in New York City. Here more than 2,000 leading executives, scientists and engineers of American industry, together with top members of the technical services of the Armed Forces, came from all sections of the United States to participate in day long sessions and seminars devoted to the theme "Armament Preparedness in the Nuclear Age."

Illustrative of the caliber of men participating are the leaders of the four panels for the technical seminars. Heading the discussion on "New Developments in Propulsion" was Mr. Charles W. Guy, assistant manager of the propulsion center, Rocketdyne, a division of North American Aviation. Mr. Guy is also chairman of the Propulsion Committee, Guided Missile and Rocket Division of the AOA. The seminar on instrumentation was led by Mr. Ralph L. Goetzenberger, vice president of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, and chairman of AOA's Fire Control Instrument Division. Mr. Daniel E. Noble, vice president of Motorola, Inc., and chairman of AOA's Guidance and Control Committee of the Guided Missile and Rocket Division, was leader of the panel on new developments in electronics. The panel on metallurgy was headed by Dr. Robert F. Mehl, Director of the Metals Research Laboratory, Carnegie Institute of Technology. On each panel, and participating in discussions from the floor, were many additional men from industry and representatives of all the Armed Services.

The complexity of the problems involved serves to emphasize the importance of their solutions to the future effectiveness of our fighting forces.

SATURDAY, 8 DECEMBER 1956

Note for example, metallurgy, a science the limits of which can set the limits of weapons' development in every one of the Armed Services. Dr. Mehl described high temperature alloys, many of which contain eight elements, as both the "dream world" and "a nightmare" of metallurgists. "The number of new combinations among eight metals," he pointed out, "is astronomical; nor can such alloys be treated in a strictly scientific way—there aren't enough dimensions in space even to represent the phase diagrams of the systems involved!"

Private industry with its ever-present competition for cost reduction and product improvement is one of America's great secret weapons. It is made even stronger and more effective by industry's willingness to work together and with the military services to advance the technology of our armaments.

READERS' VIEWS

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

Active Duty Rank

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I recently read in the JOURNAL of certain proposed changes in the Reserve Officer Promotion Act and would like to suggest one more. Why not permit Officers who are being released from active duty to retain their active duty date of rank upon entering Reserve status especially if this date of rank is prior to their date of rank in the Reserve?

Certainly if the Officer deserved promotion while serving in an active duty status, and this promotion was prior to his normal time-in-grade Reserve promotion, he should not lose his greater promotion time because he was on active duty.

Of course we do not have now the "terminal leave" promotions we had at the end of World War II, but this change in the law would partially give an Officer credit for the active duty time he has put in and assist him toward a higher rank in the Reserve by recognizing his active duty time.

New Morale Raisers

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It came as a shock last year to learn that my morale was low and had to be raised by buying new uniforms. The full impact of how low my morale had sunk came when I learned the cost of the blue and green uniforms. Now that I will shine in new sartorial splendor I must confess that my morale is even lower when I contemplate the figurative hole in my pocket caused by the purchase price of the new morale raisers.

The sudden order to get out of Shade 33 and into pinks and greens lowered my morale even further. I had to raise my morale by buying a second set of uniforms that were not fit for retention.

Joking aside—my morale and faith in the Army would rise considerably if a uniform allowance was provided to compensate for the purchase of the new uniforms—particularly as no reasonable wear-out period is provided for the old ones. The expenditure of $300 for new uniforms is another chunk out of a diminishing purchasing power.

Let's Count Our Bayonets

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have looked forward with interest to your comment on General Gruenther's warning to Russia that Russia would be completely destroyed if they used rockets (and, presumably, any other nuclear warheads) against the West. Since your comment in the 17 November JOURNAL was limited to a paragraph in your lead editorial, may I point out the real significance of the warning?

The warning seems to me to be a statement of policy by a rather high official of the U. S. to the effect that the policy of "massive retaliation" has become suicidal. If it is suicide for the Russians to use nuclear bombs against the West, it is no less so for the U. S. to use them against the Russians! The atomic stalemate is at last with us. Russia, knowing this, has many bayonets and the men to use them. We had better count ours.

Employment of Retired. Action of the Retired Officers Association in determining to carry forward its campaign for the lifting of restrictions on the employment of retired officers (see story on page 1) will be most welcomed by the Services. Current laws drastically restrict the government in its effort to make use of the training and experience of retired officers in civilian posts. The prohibitions serve both to deny the Government the services of skilled men and to bar retired officers from gainful and useful employment.

The Association also urges that existing laws which bar retired officers from certain positions in private industry on the basis of "conflict of interest" should be amended so as to apply only to the first two years after an officer goes on the retired list. This would serve to satisfy the objections to a conflict of interests and still help industries, particularly those serving the National Defense, to get the type of specialists they need so urgently.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The Navy's first successful influence exploder, announced jointly this week by the Navy and the University of Washington, was developed during the war following the pattern of the proximity fuze, capable of detonating a torpedo at a distance from a target ship merely by means of the latter's magnetism.

50 Years Ago—The Senate Committee on Military Affairs at its first meeting of the session held 6 Dec. considered all of the Army nominations, including those of Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing and Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, Chief of Artillery, and ordered that a favorable report be made on all of them.

90 Years Ago—The schemes for raising the Affordatore which were submitted to the authorities, were received from all parts of the world. It was finally determined to adopt a plan which has proved entirely successful at very little expense. The hatchways, hawseholes and all other openings in the hull were closed, and the water pumped out. The ship was then gradually and easily floated. The sinking of the ship was caused by the hawseholes being placed too low, so that they were close to the water line, and in the disastrous storm a large quantity of water was shipped through them.

Army Mules Will Get The Budget Boot; Combat Pigeons Also Knocked Off Roost

HAMBONE and G. I. Joe are headed for "involuntary retirement"—victims of new technological advances and old-fashioned Budget Bureau pressures. Hambone is the Army's famed jumping mule. G. I. Joe is the celebrated combat pigeon who saved hundreds of lives in WWII.

The military future of Hambone was sealed at 1800 on 1 December in a Pentagon announcement which stated:

"Helicopters will replace the time-honored Army mule when the Army's last animal tactical unit is inactivated at Ft. Carson, Colo., this winter."

Exactly 72 hours later, at 1800 on 4 December, came this official word on G. I. Joe and his pals:

"Pigeons trained by the Army Signal Corps, grounded by rapid advances in an electronic age, are soon to be offered for sale and the pigeon training activity at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., will be closed."

Because of its historical interest, THE JOURNAL publishes herewith the complete official statements on the fate of the mules and the pigeons.

There was no word at the Pentagon as THE JOURNAL went to press on what might be in store for the Army's dogs, but it appeared that a trend had set in and that the Army might also soon lose its bark.

"TIME HONORED MULE"

HELICOPTERS will replace the time-honored Army mule when the Army's last animal tactical unit is inactivated at Fort Carson, Colorado, this winter.

When the 4th Field Artillery Battalion (Pack), which was organized almost half a century ago, becomes a part of Army history, its designation will be moved to Ft. Sill, Okla., where it will become the experimental 4th Airphibious Field Artillery Firing Unit.

Personnel of the 4th Pack, organized in 1907, will remain at Ft. Carson. Approximately 125 horses and mules are now used by the battalion.

THE NEW AIRPHIBIOUS unit was developed by the Continental Army Command, with headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va. For experimental purposes, it will be equipped with various artillery weapons, including howitzers and rocket launchers, transportable by helicopter. The unit will test and evaluate the effectiveness of tactics, develop techniques of employment in combat, and study the adequacy of personnel and equipment allocations.

For experimental purposes, the 4th Airphibious Field Artillery Firing Unit will be assigned to The Artillery and Guided Missile Center at Ft. Sill.

In devising the new organization, the Continental Army Command envisioned that its capabilities would include rapid aerial mobility and rapid emplacement, including an observation system, communication net, and limited ground mobility. Aircraft whose rate of flight is 70 to 100 miles per hour will be used.

ALL OF THE NEW UNIT will be volunteers. Officers must be qualified as both artillerymen and Army aviators qualified to operate helicopters.

Organization of the airphibious unit, to be commanded by a lieutenant colonel, will include 224 officers and enlisted men. Its equipment will include eight reconnaissance, ten utility, twelve one and a half-ton, and eight three-ton helicopters.

IN COMBAT OPERATIONS, tactical employment of the 4th Airphibious is expected to be similar to that of the standard motorized artillery unit. However, speed and flexibility of operations through the use of helicopters will be superior to similar units using ground transport means.

This unit is expected to be particularly suited for use in special operations in the mountains, arctic and jungle, and might also be used for artillery support of aerial reconnaissance units. It could normally occupy positions which would not be readily occupied, or may be inaccessible to, units with ground transport, including areas surrounded by the enemy. It would also be able to evacuate isolated positions with minimum interference from enemy action. Rapidity of movement reduces the possibility of enemy detection and speed of flight reduces time exposed to enemy observation or enemy fire during movements.

Continental Army Command officers anticipate that the airphibious unit could move 600 miles in a day's flight. It is expected that an outfit of this sort could communicate and operate over land where roads and airfields are not available, or over water where water transport cannot be provided. As a super-mobile artillery firing unit, the airphibious organization could provide support fire in normal operations as well as for airborne, armored and other types of combat units in situations where mobility might be essential.

THE 4TH FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION (Pack) is the last tactical unit in the Army to use horses and mules. It was activated on 13 June, 1907, as the 4th Field Artillery Regiment (Mountain) at Vancouver Barracks, Washington. It trained at Ft. D. A. Russell, Wyo., and during 1908 and 1909 saw action in the Philippine Islands.

In 1916 and 1917 the unit took part in the Punitive Expedition into Mexico, and at the outbreak of World War I assisted in training other pack outfits for service in France.

On 4 Jan. 1941, the unit was reorganized as the 4th Field Artillery Battalion (Pack). During World War II it saw service overseas in New Hebrides, Guadalcanal, New Guinea and the Philippine Islands.

PIGEONS ARE GROUNDED

PIGEONS trained by the Army Signal Corps, grounded by rapid advances in an electronic age, are soon to be offered for sale and the pigeon training activity at Ft. Monmouth, New Jersey, will be closed, the Department of the Army announced today.

Progress in electronic communications has virtually ended any peacetime need of the Army for about 1,000 pigeons, the last in the Army, now at the New Jersey post. The nine military personnel engaged in the training activity will be reassigned.

USE OF THESE WAR BIRDS, who have carved out their own small chapter in U. S. Army history, was started by the Army in 1878 in the Dakota Territory. Since that time they have played a colorful role in carrying messages, map overlays and photographic film when normal wire and radio communications were not available during combat, or when it was impractical to send human couriers. Pigeons were used as recently as the fighting in Korea.

The Army Signal Corps has asked the Pigeon Fanciers' Association to be ready for any future emergency which may again require use of these birds.

Pigeon fanciers throughout the country will be given advance notice of the date, time and place of sale of the 1,000 pigeons now at Ft. Monmouth. The birds will be sold in lots of five pairs, with a minimum purchase of one lot and a maximum purchase of five lots.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS are being made for 18 pigeons at the post whose actions saved American lives during combat. The Army hopes to place them with public zoos or institutions throughout the country.

High on the list of pigeon heroes for whom the Signal Corps will seek special placement is "G. I. Joe", credited with saving the lives of hundreds of troops at Colvi Vecchia, Italy, during World War II. This pigeon flew 20 miles in as many minutes carrying an order to cancel the scheduled bombing of the city. The action saved a British brigade which had entered the city ahead of schedule. "G. I. Joe" was awarded the Dicken medal by the Lord Mayor of London in 1946.

Other famous pigeons still at Ft. Monmouth include:

"Yank", renowned not only for carrying a message on the fall of Gafsa in Tunisia, but also for carrying an urgent message for the late General George Patton 90 miles in 100 minutes.

"Caesar", who carried 44 combat messages in North Africa during World War II. He delivered an important message 300 miles, crossing the Mediterranean to a home loft in Tunisia.

The Army first experimented with pigeons for military use as early as 1878 when it bought some birds and sent them to the 5th Infantry Regiment, then on duty in the Dakota Territory. Large numbers of hawks in the area preyed on the birds, however, and use of them was dropped for a time. Ten years later the Army established a loft at Key West, Fla., and resumed experiments in this field.

SOME PIGEONS were sent with General Pershing's troops on the Punitive Expedition to Mexico. By the time the United States had entered World War I, pigeons had proved their worth and the Army had acquired 20,000 of them. Only about 5,000 birds were in France, however.

World War I saw the emergence of "Cher Ami" as one of the early pigeon heroes when he saved survivors of the "Lost Battalion" on October 4, 1918. On their third day of isolation, surrounded by the enemy and raked by fire from their own Army, men of the "Lost Battalion" released their seventh and last pigeon, "Cher Ami", with a message pleading for lifting of the fire and a statement of their location. Thirty minutes after takeoff the pigeon landed at Rampont, 25 miles away. One leg had been shattered by a bullet and one wing was injured. The message was there, however. The barrage was stopped and a detachment from the 77th Infantry Division was soon on its way to rescue the surrounded men.

"Cher Ami" received the Croix de Guerre from the French and General Pershing saw the bird off for home. When the pigeon died, the body was mounted and placed in the National Museum, Washington, D. C.

DURING WORLD WAR II approximately 40,000 racing pigeons were voluntarily supplied to the Army Signal Corps without compensation by civilian racing fanciers.

The birds were used on at least 20 different

ROA Seeks Pay Raise, Other Benefits

has conducted a study of the pay of the Armed Forces with a view to recommending pay increases for certain classifications of specially skilled personnel, the Association said it "strongly recommends that all studies and legislation contemplate the necessity for general pay increases for all members of the uniformed services and not be limited merely to pay increases for those of special qualifications, and that the benefits so granted should extend to retired persons of equivalent qualifications."

The ROA recalled that General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, has expressed the opinion that recognition in any pay increases should be given to leadership and management accomplishments, as well as to those who work on research and development.

The Association said it is transmitting copies of the pay raise resolution to Pentagon leaders and to the chairmen of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

Here are highlights of the other resolutions:

TITLE III RETIREES—The new Dependent Medical Care Act authorizes care in military installations for Title III retirees with eight or more years' active service. Equal rights should be provided for all Title III personnel, regardless of length of service.

ACADEMY CREDIT—The fulltime active military service performed by cadets, midshipmen, and the service of those who perform ROTC service, should be given full credit for pay purposes; and the fulltime active military service performed by cadets and midshipmen also should be counted for longevity.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS — Payment of pension to a widow or dependents currently is restricted to widows with annual incomes of less than $1400 if they have no minor children and to $2700 if they have dependent minor children. This is wholly unrealistic and the income limitations should be raised to a more realistic figure. Also, Social Security benefits and commercial insurance payments to a widow or dependent, and likewise funds from the sale or rental of a domiciliary home, should not be counted as part of such income.

DUAL EMPLOYMENT—Retired Regular officers (unless retired for disability) are, with few exceptions, barred from taking Government jobs paying more than $2500 per year, and retired Reservists are limited to a combined income of $10,000 from retirement and Government employment. These laws operate to the disadvantage of many retired officers and deprive the Government of the services of highly qualified personnel. Both should be repealed.

30 YEARS' SERVICE—Many benefits accrue to the survivors of Servicemen who die on active duty or from service-connected causes after leaving active duty. With few exceptions, the death of a long time service person, must necessarily culminate from the rigors of active service, especially if the service of such person has covered the span of most active adult years. Where such death occurs after 30 years of active duty (providing it is not due to the member's own misconduct) it should be presumed to be service-connected, thus providing adequate benefits to survivors.

occasions during fighting in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations when they were the only means of communication. They proved valuable in sending information gathered in action behind enemy lines.

While the use of pigeons in the invasion of France was limited to English birds, only 134 U. S. birds were employed during the Roer River crossing; 25 messages and 67 map overlays were carried by them.

In the Southwest Pacific Area, pigeon communication proved effective with small ships as well as in jungle and mountainous terrain. In Burma, a loft was established behind enemy lines and pigeons were put to use by agents as well as forward troops.

CIVILIAN MEDICAL CARE—The new Dependent Medical Care Act authorizes treatment in civilian hospitals for the wives and children of active duty Servicemen. Congress should take early action to provide medical care for retired officers, their spouses and children in civilian hospitals on the same basis as for spouses and children of active duty personnel. Retired personnel and their dependents often reside at considerable distances from service hospitals and cannot avail themselves of care at service hospitals except at great expense and hardship.

The Association also said:

- Conflict of interest laws should be amended to permit retired Regular and Reserve officers not on active duty to engage in any and all activities in connection with Government work when they have been retired for at least two years.

- The ROA advocates and supports changes in the Reserve program to stimulate interest in and strengthen that program by providing improved training facilities and opportunities.

- All retired personnel of the uniformed services should have the right to receive treatment in VA hospitals.

- Retired Regular officers may waive retired pay in order to receive benefits under VA laws; this right of election should be extended to retired Reserve and National Guard officers.

- A board should be set up to recommend promotions for deserving officers and enlisted men who participated in the Defense of the Philippines and who were not promoted after being held as POWs.

Elect Admiral Denfeld

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, USN-Ret, former Chief of Naval Operations, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Retired Officers' Association.

The ROA also reelected Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, USA-Ret, President and all other officers.

Sixteen of the 33 members of the Board of Directors also were reelected for four-year terms expiring in 1960. They are:

Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, ANC-Ret.
VADM. Lloyd T. Chalker, USCG-Ret.

Army Secretary Asks ROA Help

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker has called on the Retired Officers' Association for help in getting young men interested in military careers.

Speaking to the ROA biennial convention during a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C., on 30 Nov., he said the ROA members, because of their military background, long experience and prestige "have an especially challenging opportunity" to assist the Armed Forces in meeting their obligations.

He told the Retired Officers they "are

THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF have ordered a new study into the composition of the Nation's Reserve Forces, with emphasis on Atomic Age needs. There's some feeling among the Chiefs that new strategic plans and concepts make obsolete many previous plans for development and utilization of Reserve Forces. THE UPSHOT of the new inquiry could well be a decision to give relatively less stress on the numerical buildup of the Reserve; instead, there would be greater concentration on the organization and training of truly "ready to go" outfits. THIS STUDY IS SIGNIFICANT for the reason that beginning next Summer, the Army is slated to receive thousands of men each month into the Reserve upon completion of two years active service. It's recalled that just before he left office, then Assistant SecDef John A. Hannah advanced a controversial plan which called for designation of a limited number of divisions (he indicated the National Guard would be a more likely source than the Reserve) for intensified Reserve Forces support. DR. HANNAH'S SUGGESTION was shot down; instead, the effort has been made to swell the numbers in the Reserve Forces. Now, that trend may be reversed, because of (1) changes in battle doctrine as a result of new weapons and (2) the cost of an oversized Reserve will be considerable, particularly since it does not appear likely at this time that the Active Forces can be reduced significantly.

THE ARMY WAS SOMEWHAT SURPRISED last week when SecDef Wilson, in clarifying the Roles and Missions situation in the Services, denied the Army automatic authority to exceed the 5000 pound aircraft limitation. Mr. Wilson said, however, that the Army would be allowed to buy 5 overweight deHavilland Twin Otters. HERE'S THE WRINKLE: The Army had not completed staff studies on this aircraft, still isn't absolutely certain that the planes will be ordered. The Army wants assurance that purchase of this plane will not thwart efforts to get improved Vertical Take Off and Landing and Short Take Off and Landing Aircraft.

THE AIR FORCE IS SEEKING stronger representation on the Board of Commissioners of the U. S. Soldiers' Home in Washington. Residents at the Home currently total about 1800, but of this number only 124 are either former members of the Air Force or the Army Air Corps. ARMY REPRESENTATIVES currently make up the entire voting membership of the Board, although six AF officials sit in on the Board's deliberations. However, with the prospect of increased AF membership among the residents in future years, the Air Force hopes Congress will change the law to provide voting seats for both Services.

UNIFORM UNIFORMITY is being emphasized by the Army in connection with sale of the new Army Green. An official circular notes that some commercial vendors—particularly overseas—have been selling green uniforms that fail to meet standards for color and weight. Army personnel are advised to get in writing a guarantee that commercially bought uniforms are in line with Quartermaster General specifications. THE ARMY STATES that there must be no variation from the official color which is apparent to the naked eye when the wearer is in ranks and is observed from a distance of approximately 10 feet.

ARMY DEVELOPMENT OF GAS TURBINE ENGINES for possible use in tanks and automotive equipment is proceeding apace at Detroit Arsenal, according to discussion at the meeting of the American Ordnance Association this week in New York. Col. Benjamin S. Mesick, USA-Ret., told the Metallurgy Seminar that the Army's long experience in that field is aiding it in its search for heat resistant metals needed for such automotive gas turbines.

TEEN-AGE ENTHUSIASM will prompt the Army to consider modification of the training curriculum for youngsters who serve six months on active duty and then rejoin Reserve and National Guard units. Many of the RFA soldiers have expressed disappointment because they cannot take tests to qualify for the Expert Infantryman's Badge. It's being proposed that such a test program be included in the RFA training cycle.

THE DENTIST SHORTAGE in the Army is confronted with new cavities that will need filling. Just getting underway at reception centers is a new procedure by which detailed dental charts are made out on each new soldier. In the past, the Army gave only brief dental examinations at the reception centers.

THE ARMY'S SIGNAL CORPS Laboratory at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., has won praise for its work in connection with Project Vanguard, the Earth Satellite effort. The Signal Corps people—virtually alone among the many participants—have not been required to ask for additional money. The Monmouth Laboratory is charged with major power source responsibilities for Vanguard.

COAST GUARD LEADERS will urge consideration for many of their personnel if the Defense Department seeks extra pay for men assigned to hardship stations. The Coast Guard has considerable numbers of officers and men on duty at lonely posts in various parts of the world; many are Loran stations.

"NIRTS TO YOU" is going to become an expression of the Missile Age. It will be a timely declaration. At White Sands Proving Ground, N.M., the huge test center that is used by all the Services, work is underway on installing "NIRTS", known in more refined parlance as the "New Integrated Range Timing System." IT'S AN INVOLVED TECHNIQUE capable of dividing a second into 100,000 parts by stations along a guided missile test range—literally split-second action.

THE RESIGNATION of Assistant SecDef Carter Burgess could further jeopardize chances for pay raise legislation next year. He has been a leading advocate of changes in the military pay structure that would mean higher pay for thousands of Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers. Under his leadership, a special Career Incentives Task Force has scored brilliant successes on Capitol Hill. THERE WILL BE CONCERN that a member of weeks will be required to brief his successor on such complicated personnel problems as military pay. The fact that the Cordiner Committee, of which Mr. Burgess is vice chairman, has not yet submitted its findings to SecDef Wilson indicates that difficulties are being encountered in working out a plan that the entire Committee can back.

MOVIE ATTENDANCE is slipping in the Armed Forces. The Army-AF Motion Picture Service reports a 13 per cent slump in the last fiscal year. This cost about $1.5 in gross receipts. Movie profits go into the welfare fund.

Army Tests DH Otters On Benning Battlefield

Using 12 U-1A Otters, the First Aviation Company at Fort Benning has completed a maneuver demonstrating that this new type aircraft can be used in operations under battlefield conditions.

Heading the operation was Maj. Jerome B. Feldt, USA, commander of the company, assisted by Capt. George P. Heald, USA, commander of Company B, Fourth Battalion of the Third Infantry Division.

The joint maneuver combined the efforts of the Infantrymen and aviation unit. Its purposes were five-fold: to validate doctrines contained in the Army Field Manual; to determine type loads of combat ready rifle companies that will fit into the new Canadian-made de Havilland, U-1A aircraft, more commonly known as the Otter; to provide training for the First Aviation Company in working with an Infantry combat unit; to provide training for troops of Third Infantry Division in the use of the Otter, and to provide training for units of the Third Division in air-land operations.

The tactical problem consisted of an Infantry battalion being air landed 12,000 yards forward of front lines. The men were to land, assemble and assault an assigned objective and secure their portion of the air-head-line.

Capt. Edward J. Cavanaugh, USA, member of the Testing Committee, Air Mobility Group, Airborne-Army Aviation Department, The Infantry School, who accompanied the airlift, said "this is the first time that a U-1 has taken part in a simulated combat situation of this nature and the men of the Fourth Battalion were the first ground combat unit to use the Otter."

that USAA has long been the choice of the Armed Forces

Organized 34 years ago to provide low-cost automobile insurance for officers and warrant officers of the armed forces, United Services Automobile Association is a non-profit organization under the management of active and retired service officers.

The policy of insuring only preferred risks, plus responsible management, has provided substantial savings and has made USAA truly the choice of the services.

In 1955 over seven million dollars of dividends were paid in the states to 262,161 members, amounting to an average saving of 44% of the standard manual premiums on automobiles.

Wherever you serve, USAA can serve you. Claims are settled rapidly, also—even in the most remote places.

Give yourself the most responsible protection for the least cost.

Dependable POWER for RECORD HELICOPTER PERFORMANCE

U. S. ARMY VERTOL H21 powered by CYCLONE 9 ENGINE is the first to make a non-stop transcontinental helicopter flight

The first helicopter to fly non-stop across the U. S. —a U. S. Army Vertol H21—proved again the rugged reliability of the world-famous Curtiss-Wright Cyclone 9 engine. Refueled several times in flight and twice while hovering above the ground, the Army's biggest helicopter flew 2,610 miles from San Diego, Cal. to Washington, D. C. and stayed aloft for thirty-seven hours, proving the strategic value of the helicopter in increasing the long-distance striking power and mobility of ground forces.

This cross-country flight is the most recent in a long list of record-setting performances by aircraft powered with the Cyclone 9—an engine type with a 20-year record of outstanding performance. The specially engineered Cyclone 9 for helicopter service is an engine built for today's big lifts... for the rough-and-ready service of the military... for the vital work of rescue, supply and civil defense. Its power and dependability have also given new scope to the helicopter concept for commercial aviation.

The Cyclone 9 is another example of Curtiss-Wright's leadership in aircraft power for the needs of today and tomorrow.

NORTH AMERICAN HAS BUILT MORE AIRPLANES THAN ANY OTHER COMPANY IN THE WORLD

SUPERSONIC STRENGTH...IN QUANTITY

The F-100 Super Sabre, America's first operational supersonic fighter, flies now in squadron strength wherever the Air Force spreads its supersonic wings—at home or abroad. Latest improved models are coming off the production lines of the Los Angeles and Columbus, Ohio plants of North American Aviation—an industrial citizen whose primary occupation is the continuing development and delivery of advanced aircraft for the country's defense...in quantity, on schedule, and at lowest possible cost.

67 "Million-Miler" Pilots and Navigators Honored By MATS' 1700th AT Group

A group of Military Air Transport Service pilots and navigators who have flown a combined total of more than 67,000,000 miles have been honored at Kelly Air Force Base for professional achievements in flying.

The occasion featured for the first time within MATS and the Air Force the presentation of "Million Miler Certificate of Achievement" to pilots and navigators who had flown at least 1,000,000 miles over the world's air routes.

Sixty-seven pilots and navigators, either assigned or attached to the 1700th Air Transport Group, Kelly AFB, were presented a "Million Miler Certificate" by Col. Claude W. Smith, USAF, commander of the group and the originator of the certificate.

The presentations were made on the MATS' flight line at Kelly AFB.

Each engraved certificate, bearing the name of the recipient and signed by Colonel Smith, honored the individual air crew member for having "displayed the highest degree of professionalism in flying more than one million miles over the world's air routes" and for having obtained, as a crew member in aircraft of the U. S. Air Force, "the status of an 'Airman of the World,' a position which comes only to those who have constantly displayed the initiative to progress in their chosen profession of aviation."

Air crew members receiving the certificates were: Col. Emil G. Beaudry, Lt. Col. Samuel C. Burgess, Lt. Col. Wortley

F. Rudd, Lt. Col. Donald P. Simpson, Comdr. James H. Davies.

FROM THE LAND, AND FROM THE SEA...

The Terrier Clears the Air!

Convair's versatile Terrier missile is now seeing land duty with the U.S. Marine Corps—affording you new and mobile protection! Already operational at sea with the U.S. Navy, the Terrier's new mobility is provided by launchers and handling equipment developed specifically for ground use.

The Terrier gives the Marines tremendous and accurate firepower where they want it, when they want it—to destroy an invading aircraft.

Produced by Convair-Pomona in cooperation with the U.S. Navy Bureau of Ordnance, the Terrier now can clear the air from both land and sea for your protection!

WE DISCUSS

- I. The hundreds of avenues open to young executives to broaden their success in the great 1957 ahead!
- II. Based on lush 1955-1956, we project the curve of "business activity" to its rich 1957 ceiling.
- III. 1957 is to be a truly great year for those who learn to know the "mileposts" we shall place for bold investors.
- IV. Commodity prices will smack floor and ceiling emphatically.
- V. Seven cornerstone growth stocks for any man with a dollar or two.
- VI. Labor—its wages, responsibilities and contributions!
- VII. WAR through the eyes of the man who first forecast the Suez seizure on January 30th; 5 months ahead of Nasser!
- VIII. Compare the President's "State of the Union" speech in January with our own economic views on 1957.
- IX. 10 low-priced common stocks discovered.
- X. The great political issues of the day . . . war, socialism, neutrality.
- XI. Good and Bad Industries separated and good stocks pinpointed.

AND IN DETAIL
WE PUBLISH
HIGH AND LOW
Stocks Bonds
Business Reserve Rates

Yes, "WHAT TO EXPECT IN 1957" gives a complete "Growth" Portfolio for your $225.00 monthly income boost, and tells exactly what price to pay for each item in it.

WE RECOMMEND

1. Unlimited BUYING at our 1957 calculated LOW in common stocks . . . for Bounce, Growth and Income.
2. Unlimited SWITCHING into bonds when they reach our 1957 pivot low.
3. Unlimited PARTICIPATION in our growth Portfolio at the detailed BUYING prices given.
4. Two separate BUYING and SELLING campaigns in our 3 outstanding low-priced stocks.
5. Unhesitating ABANDONMENT of securities in 30 of the 50 basic industries. We name 20 DEFENSE-TIME industries and stocks.
6. ABSORPTION of prime stocks from our unique list of 100 supervised stocks.

YOU CAN ONLY HIT THE BULL'S EYE IF YOU SEE the whole target. No effort has been spared to make the 1957 forecast book the most complete and comprehensive of the last 21 years of publication. Each chapter discusses its topics fully—brings the background into clear focus and winds up with detailed and calculated forecasts on all security levels—high and low—for 1957. Dozens of detailed guidance prices are included and short-term trend pivots.

THREE OUTSTANDING LOW-PRICED STOCKS for immediate purchase are found in Chapter III for your use. The average price is under $18.00; the yield 6%.

SEIZE YOUR 1957 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES . . . Boy!—Here is an opportunity for many an enterprising man to make money in 10 dazzling and different ways in 1957. We list them and name goals. Executives ready to branch out should check this listing, a listing which does not involve common stock purchases.

THE 1957 STOCK TOP . . . Almost anyone could have called the 1956 market high—but in 1957 it required a "big-game" hunter to "stalk down" the TOP figures. Our book gives a figure calculated with extra fine skill: because in 1957 you MUST do some sincere selling at or near Tillman's top estimate.

USE THIS PORTFOLIO FOR $225.00 EXTRA MONTHLY INCOME . . . Our regular work includes "fitting" Portfolios to all sorts of investor problems; but here is ONE of high performance quality which will fit our theme—"we want you to grow". With these great stocks you will enjoy its splendid income along the way. See Chapter (V) for full details.

CREDIT AND BOND BARGAINS . . . The "money-lake" is low; so credit is tight; hence bond prices are low. We advise widows and orphans on the Government bargains. We have a list for other bargain-hunters. For "income" alone, hunting is very good. Buy the selected bonds at our prices. Put them away and forget them. Collect your "bonus" at maturity and enjoy 6% in safety all along the way.

INFLATION AND RAW MATERIAL . . . A lot of money will be made in pepper, rice, tin, rubber, sugar, during 1957. These commodities fall under the Tillman estimates for 1957 in the Dow-Jones Commodity Index. Buy and sell at its pivot points which have appeared for over 15 of the 22 years in which this classic forecast has been published.

TAXES AND TAX REVOLT: . . . The tax outlook for 1957 is discussed and various means of revolt are reviewed. The theory is that if the Poles and Hungarians risked their lives, Americans should at least begin to TALK about the long over-due tax reforms—at all levels.

THE ABC OF PERSONAL FINANCIAL SUCCESS . . . The Stock-Market will always give you a second chance—but it is so much better to avoid the first mistake. In our book there are 17 long-tested rules of personal success. Use them in 1957 together with our detailed forecasts and watch how much better you do.

THE ODD "STATE OF THE UNION" . . . Each year now we make factual talk about the "State of the Union". It is intended to be compared to the President's constitutional speech to Congress in January. Usually, we have a few surprises for the public, some of which the President is too politically bashful to talk about.

COMMON STOCKS WILL SURELY REWARD YOU IN 1957 . . . that is, if you work on the price pattern given in Chapter (III). Here you will find Tillman's estimate for the TOP figure and for each of the 3 parts of the market. He gives also the lowest for the D-J averages. Also, how many real moves will be made within the year—and how to profit from each one!

GREAT DEFENSE INDUSTRIES AND THEIR 60 BEST STOCKS . . . You may properly say that we have passed through the Cold-War, and are now in the War of Nerves. In order to be on the safe side, we list for you 60 stocks in defense industries, and tell you when to buy for best capital gains.

3 OUTSTANDING LOW-PRICED STOCKS . . . These three stocks sell for $17.75 on average. They earn on average about $2.00 and yield on average 6.2% in cash and stock. Our estimates say BUY at once. Sell at the 1957 high and BUY once more at the 1957 low. Details supplied in Chapter VII.

THE 1957 MARKET LOW! HERE IS A BARGAIN PARADISE! Bonds will be low and give big safe incomes! Gilt-edged non-callable preferred stocks will be giving a good fat 6% or more. Common stocks will be compressed down to an explosion point. Fortune's Foundation will be laid by thousands, and particularly by those who get the fascinating details from the veteran analyst, Carroll Tillman, in his 22nd annual book—

Lieutenant Thompson, USN, Has New Address—

Lt. Virginia M. Thompson, USN, has received orders to report to the Naval Examining Center at Great Lakes, Ill., where she will report 1 January, from her assignment as Assistant Administrative Officer at NAS, Miramar, San Diego, Calif.

Belvoir Wives Master Skillet Skills—

Among the 25 activity and special interest groups sponsored by the Ft. Belvoir Officers' Wives Club, none is more heartily endorsed by the husbands of members than the one appropriately called "Bon Appetit," a class in gourmet cookery. Mrs. Francis P. Crumb is chairman of the group, which meets each Tuesday evening in one of the Post cafeteria kitchens, under the skilled direction of Mr. Clement Maggia, a renowned chef. The members participate in preparing a series of dishes and often a complete meal, and at the end of each session, go home with the delectable products of their culinary effort, to the delight of enthusiastic husbands.

The menu for a recent evening was a magic carpet flight to such European citadels of fine cuisine as Athens, Paris and Madrid, with a few versions of Mr. Clement's own concoctions, notably one he called "poulette a la Belvoir." A surprise of the evening was that, unknown to the members, Mr. Clement had invited the husbands and among those dining were Maj. Gen. Stanley C. Scott, a former Ft. Belvoir Commanding General, Cdr. John McLendon, Col. Eskil Alenius, Col. Horace F. Sykes and Lt. Col. Charles M. Roberts. Still another surprise of the evening was the cake prepared by the class for the member whose birthday was closest, which proved to be that of Mrs. David H. Tulley, wife of Ft. Belvoir's present Commanding General.

The Navy Sea Chanters, one of the newest Service singing groups, will be featured by the Officers' Wives Club of Ft. Belvoir on 12 Dec., when the members gather for their annual Christmas tea. Wives of the officers of the Engineer Research and Development Laboratories will arrange the party with music in the Mt. Vernon Room and tea in the Fairfax Room of Mackenzie Hall. Mrs. H. F. Sykes, wife of the Director of ERDL, is chairman, assisted by Mesdames E. M. J. Alenius, Lulu Deeds, J. A. Bacci and A. C. Fillbrandt.

Other committee members include Mesdames Paul Shaw, John Perkins, S. R. Meekin, Alois Morgan, Frank Alford, C. A. Armstrong, John Cagnetta, William Wray, Walter Simmons, P. T. Nation, Ernest Graves, Robert Wing, John Holmes, Maurice Kurtz and Robert Wascher.

Navy SC Christmas Party—

"Twas the night before Christmas" from the famous poem by Dr. Clement Moore is the theme selected by the Navy Supply Corp Officers for their once-a-year formal dinner dance, to be held Friday, 14 Dec., at the Army-Navy Club.

Festivities will get under way at 6:30 p.m., when cocktails will be served. The 8 o'clock dinner will be followed by an evening of dancing.

The Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts and Mrs. Ralph J. Arnold will head the receiving line, which will include the Deputy Chief of the Bureau and Mrs. Thomas L. Becknell, jr., Capt. and Mrs. Edgar D. Vestel, jr., and Capt. and Mrs. Elton W. Sutherland.

A friendly old-fashioned Christmas will become a reality under the skillful hand of Mrs. Vestel, chairman of the ball, and her committee.

Ballroom decorations, highlighted by four giant Christmas trees, trimmed with traditional popcorn ropes, glittering chains and colorful bobbles, will depict scenes from "A Visit From St. Nicholas." Sugar plums, miniature Christmas trees and bright red candles will center each table during the dinner hour.

Chairmen of various committees are, ballroom decorations, Mrs. W. R. Wright; dining room decorations, Mrs. R. M. Jones; invitations, Mrs. E. E. Brighton; reservations, Mrs. H. J. Goldberg; hostesses, Mrs. C. R. Eagle; refreshments, Mrs. G. V. Clark; program, Mrs. L. F. Redavid and name tags, Cdr. D. M. Quinn.

Mrs. E. R. Blanding, chairman of the dismantling committee will distribute the festive decorations and the four large Christmas trees to the Anderson Hospital's Junior Village for Children and the Salvation Army, to be utilized during the Christmas season at various children's parties and Christmas gatherings. Proceeds from the sale of the dining room decorations will be donated to the Salvation Army expressly for "Santa's Visit" to the less fortunate children of the Washington area.

MISS PENNY JOHNSON of Randolph AFB, Tex., left, discusses plans for her participation as Princess of the Air Force in the annual San Antonio Black and White Ball, 8 Dec., with Mrs. Frank H. Robinson, her sponsor. Mrs. Robinson is the wife of Maj. Gen. Frank H. Robinson, Crew Training Air Force commander. The Black and White Ball is sponsored annually by the San Antonio Selene Club. Miss Johnson is the daughter of Col. Robert D. Johnson, director of Dental Services, CrewTAF.

Engineer OWC Of Washington—

Soft lights from giant red candles flickered on holly, pine, gilded fruits and cones to form the setting for the annual Christmas cocktail supper with which the Engineer Officers' Wives Club of Washington opened their holiday season last weekend in the Crystal Room of the Navy Gun Factory Officers' Club.

Guests of honor were the officers of the Corps, Maj. Gen. Emerson C. Itschner, Chief of Engineers, and Mrs. Itschner were there, as were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Kenneth D. Nichols, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley L. Scott, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. J. S. Bragdon. Also attending were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Paul Berrigan from Chicago, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stephen R. Hamner, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Henning Linden, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Theodore Osborne and a host of others. Coming in from Ft. Belvoir, Va., were Col. and Mesdames Ellsworth I. Davis, H. G. Lux, Lt. Col. and Mesdames Russell M. Kelly, Charles M. Roberts and Alfred M. Eschbach.

Mrs. David W. Helman was chairman of the committee on arrangements. Mrs. Herbert P. Donald planned the decorations and Mrs. Alfred D. Starbird headed the hostess committee.

Signpost to a nation's greatness

Freedom's cause never ebbed among the courageous patriots of Washington's army. Today, this sign post stands as mute testimony to an unflinching courage, a dedication to an ideal more precious than life itself. "Peace at any price" they scorned as unworthy the heritage of free men. Craven weakness in the face of oppression they looked upon with contempt. Abandonment of principle was unthinkable! They started America upon the path of greatness. It is our duty in this era of Communist conspiracy to hold fast to these traditions of honor and nobility they have willed us.

Brooke AH Wives Will Share Christmas With Needy; Study Plight of Widows

Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.—Sharing Christmas with service families in distressed circumstances was the theme of the 6 Dec. coffee of the Brooke Army Hospital Officers' Wives club.

Cash funds were voted from the club's treasury in preparation for the annual tradition of the club. Members attending the coffee also contributed gifts of money, toys and canned goods to augment the funds.

Mrs. Thomas S. Seay, welfare chairman of the club, will supervise the distribution of a merrier Christmas to four needy service families in the area.

Two Coffees

FURSTENFELDBRUCK AIR BASE, GERMANY. Members of the Reserve Officers' Association Ladies here honored two departing members, Mrs. Dan Redington and Mrs. M. B. ### JUDITH ANN FUND

An Army officer whose wife recently gave birth to a mentally deficient baby has launched a project to help other parents faced with the same problem. He is Lt. Col. Joseph E. Stermer, OrdC., 14160 Onaway Rd., Shaker Heights, Ohio, whose three-month-old daughter is now being cared for by the nuns at Benedictine Heights Hospital, Guthrie, Okla. The Stermers have four other children—ranging from 18 months to 14 years. The $120 a month in hospital costs represents a major item in the family budget. The Stermers are able to absorb the expense, but their new problem has brought them concern about other families who are unable to assume such a financial burden. They are enlisting help from relatives, fraternal organizations, Army Chaplains and others to underwrite the costs of caring for other Mongoloid children. Colonel Stermer calls the project the "Judith Ann Fund" in honor of his daughter. He asks that contributions be sent to Sister Mary Charles, Director of Benedictine Heights Hospital, Guthrie, Okla.

Obituaries

Lt. Gen. Lewis Andrew Pick, USA-Ret

Funeral services were held on 6 Dec, at the First Presbyterian Church of Auburn, Ala., for Lt. Gen. Lewis Andrew Pick, USA-Ret, who died at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 2 Dec. He was 66 years old.

Born at Brookneal, Va., General Pick, a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, enlisted in the Army at the outbreak of WWI. In 1917, he was commissioned a 1st lieutenant in the Corps of Engineer Reserve and was assigned to the 23d Engineer Regiment, which participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Following a tour of duty in England, General Pick returned to the States and was discharged in 1919. In 1920, he reenlisted in the Army and served until 1923 in the 3d and 14th Engineers of the Philippine Scouts, a group he organized.

During the Mississippi River flood of 1927, he was President Herbert Hoover's Engineer Assistant on the Relief Commission. From 1936 to 1938, General Pick was first a student and then an instructor at the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., prior to attending and graduating from the Army War College. In 1942, while serving as Missouri River Division Engineer at Omaha, Nebr., he evolved a plan for the development of the Missouri River Basin, which later became known as the Pick-Sloan Plan.

In 1943, General Pick was assigned Commander of the Forward Section in the China-Burma-India Theater of Operations and under his leadership, the Ledo Road, "Pick's Pike," was constructed.

General Pick was named Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, on 1 March 1949 and under his command, during the Korean conflict, the Corps speedily rehabilitated old camps, built new ones, designed and constructed industrial plants to strengthen the national defense and built air fields all over the world.

Retired from active duty after 35 years service, on 30 Nov. 1952, General Pick became Director of the Industrial Development Board of the State of Alabama, was a member of the Planning Board for the Southeastern States, was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the John J. Harthe Co., in Atlanta, Ga., was Vice Chairman of the Georgia Pacific Plywood Co., a member of the Board of the Orradio Corporation, and served as an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Auburn and President of the Alabama Heart Association.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Cary Pick of 360 No. College St., Auburn; one son, Capt. Lewis A. Pick, jr., USA, now in Germany; and one granddaughter, Elizabeth Bruce Pick.

VADM. L. C. Stevens, USN (Ret.)

Funeral services were held 4 Dec. at Ft. Myer Chapel, Va., for VADM. Leslie Clark Stevens, USN (Ret.), who died at Seminole Hospital, Sanford, Fla., 30 Nov. Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery.

Admiral Stevens, who was 61, was the former Chief of the Joint Subsidiary Plans Division of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and author of "Russian Assignment." He was naval attache in Moscow from 1947 to 1949.

He is survived by his wife, Nell Millikin Stevens, and a son, Leslie Clark Stevens, 3d, author of the play "Bullfight."

RADM. A. J. Wellings, USN (Ret.)

Funeral services for RADM. Augustus Joseph Wellings, USN (Ret.), 59, who died 29 Nov. at Bethesda Naval Hospital, Md., were held 3 Dec. at the Ft. Meyer Chapel, Va. Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery.

Prior to his retirement in 1954, Admiral Wellings was with the Office of Naval Materiel. A 1920 graduate of the Naval Academy, he was the former commander of the Atlantic Fleet's Amphibious Training Command. During WWII, Admiral Wellings served as director of the Inspection Administration, Office of Procurement and Materiel, of the Executive Office of the Secretary of the Navy.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose Standish Bradford Wellings, a son, Augustus, Jr., and daughter, Rose S.; and three brothers, RADM. Timothy Francis Wellings, USN-Ret., RADM. Joseph Harold Wellings, commander of Task Group 72 in the Atlantic, and Capt. Albert A. Wellings, USN-Ret.

Maj. Gen. A. A. Kessler, USAF-Ret.

Maj. Gen. Alfred A. Kessler, USAF-Ret., 58, died of a heart attack 30 Nov. in San Rafael, Calif. He was the former commander of the Fourth Air Force.

A 1922 graduate of West Point, General Kessler began his service career in Army Air Service. During WWII, he headed the first contingent of Army Air Corps units sent to Russia in 1944 to establish shuttle fields for bombing strikes into Germany. He was the director of planning and procurement at Air Force headquarters from 1947 to 1952.

Col. B. F. Delameter, Jr., USA-Ret.

Funeral services were held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Antonio, Tex., for Col. Benjamin Franklin Delameter, Jr., 69, who died 14 Oct. at Brooke General Hospital, Tex. Burial was in Bryan City Cemetery.

A 1912 graduate of West Point, Colonel Delameter spent 40 years in the service prior to his retirement in 1947. During WWII, he was commander of the 5th Regimental Combat Team in Panama. He also served two years as Post Commander at Camp Hood, La.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rachel Delameter of Caldwell, Tex.; his father, Col. Benjamin F. Delameter, sr.; a son, Col. Benjamin F. Delameter, 3d, and a daughter,

Col. H. S. Newman, USA-Ret.

Funeral services were held at Post Chapel and burial at National Cemetery, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., for Lt. Col. Hartley Sebe Newman, USA-Ret., 60, who died 23 Nov. at Brooke Army Hospital, Tex.

A veteran of WWI and WWII, Colonel Newman was in the service from 1917 to his retirement in 1948. His last assignment was as Executive Officer of the Historical Division at the Pentagon.

He is survived by his wife, Melba B., who lives in San Antonio; a son, Hartley S., Jr., and two daughters, Rosemary and Marcia Anne; his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Newman; three brothers, Cybert W., Claude and Glenn, and two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Tayman and Miss Billie Newman.

First RFA "Alumni"

ly following a challenging training assignment in Viet-Nam, says talks with the RFA soldiers "convince me they are eager to keep up the good work. Many of them already are talking about promotions to NonCommissioned Officer ranks in the Reserve, and some are making plans to win commissions."

General Bergquist said the "motivation factor" is high throughout the RFA companies. As a consequence, he explains, the 17 and 18 year olds, with few exceptions, are trying to learn as much as possible during their brief active duty careers.

Col. Walter J. Burk, USA, who commands the 1st Training Regiment with its hand-picked Officer and NonCommissioned Officer cadre, says he is convinced that "the enthusiasm of the RFA soldiers is helping to give added pep to the training of soldiers brought in through the regular draft."

Colonel Burk reports his records show that the RFA companies and the Basic Trainee units run neck and neck in field tests. He explains that techniques which are developed for training 17 year olds and which prove successful frequently can be carried over into the training of other soldiers.

But whatever the General and the Colonel have to say on the subject, the evaluation that counts most in terms of the impact of the program on national defense is the attitude of the RFA soldiers.

Random interviews here revealed an extremely high level of interest in the Army. The young graduates repeatedly expressed the hope that the weekly drill sessions in hometown units would reflect the same caliber of training they had received at Dix.

Private Volland is returning to the 102d Division in St. Louis, Mo., as a qualified light weapons infantryman.

Typical of hundreds of outstanding college-bound youngsters who have chosen the six month RFA active duty program and the 7½ year Reserve obligation, Private Volland says he plans to enter Notre Dame next year. He aspires to complete a course in nuclear physics, hopes to win an Army commission in the process.

Private Volland confides that he has a reason to be particularly enthusiastic over the RFA program. While at Dix, he bought a raffle in a post charity drive and won a Plymouth station wagon.

"I guess I probably struck it richer in the Army than any other trainee here," he says.

Private Volland and a group of his Bravo Company friends told a visiting newsmen they plan to encourage as many of their young friends as possible to sign up for the RFA. Several like Volland pointed to the prospect of uninterrupted educational careers.

Two 17 year old soldiers who will return to the Massachusetts National Guard said their RFA status would make it easier for them to get jobs. Both said it was important to their self-confidence that they had found themselves able to meet the challenge of the training program at Dix and come out with flying colors.

On hand for the 30 November graduation ceremonies were Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, USA, First Army Commander, and Maj. Gen. P. D. Ginder, USA, Special Assistant for Reserve Forces. General Herren and General Ginder stressed the fact that in reality this was no graduation, but only the completion of one phase of the RFA service. Both expressed delight with the sharp look of Dix's first RFA "alumni" contingent.

Now, it remains to be seen how these youngsters and hundreds like them completing training at other centers throughout the country are integrated into Reserve and National Guard units.

If that job is done well, the Reserve Program will flourish. If not, if the first groups of young soldiers are disappointed by mediocre leadership, then the Reserve Forces will be confronted with strong pressures from Washington to set things right.

CNO Tells Needs

have not yet found a satisfactory solution.

"But we have faced tough problems before and we have always found the answers. What matters is that we keep at the problem and that the American people understand clearly what we are trying to do. Our people have never failed to provide the means necessary to their national security once they had a clear understanding of the problems and issues involved."

The Admiral pointed out that "our planes, missiles, weapons are only as effective as the ships on which they are based. The most promising missile in the world will not enhance our naval capabilities unless there are ships equipped to fire it."

"The fastest plane in the world has no value to a Navy that cannot take it aboard."

"This means that our ships must keep pace with these profound improvements in our ordnance, aviation and propulsion engineering. There is real need for balance and timing so that our country receives the maximum benefit from these developing new capabilities as they emerge."

Preceding his address, Admiral Burke was presented with the American Ordnance Association's Blandy Gold Medal by Lt. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Jr., USA-Ret. The Medal honors the life and work of the late Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, USN.

Reliability and Easier Maintenance Seen As Great Needs in Military Electronics

NEW YORK CITY

Despite, or possibly because of, the enormous and rapid growth of electronics in military weapon systems, the greatest needs in that field today are an increase in reliability and a built-in system of easier maintenance.

These were the outstanding conclusions of industry and Service participants in a seminar on electronics held 5 Dec. in connection with the 38th Annual Preparedness Meeting of the American Ordnance Association.

Daniel E. Noble, vice president of Motorola, Inc., the panel leader, first brought it up in his statement that "we have moved too far and too fast to permit the normal orderly processes of refinement and improvement to stabilize designs and to mature the products to the required level of producibility and reliability in field operation."

PERSONNEL PROBLEMS of the Armed Services, too, play their part. Mr. Noble, further discussing reliability and maintenance, said:

"Faced with the necessity for placing thousands of each type of the hundreds of electronic systems in successful operation on a war basis of daily field operation, we would soon be faced with the utter collapse of our broad front of electronic capability. This would be brought about by our inability to service and maintain the equipment."

"It is generally agreed that to recruit, train and assign thousands of newborn, 30-day wonder, electronic service miracle-men could result only in the general collapse of electronic systems performance. Our complex equipment can be serviced by normally intelligent servicemen only if they become associated with it continuously over a period of many years and dedicate their lives to the career of servicing such equipment."

"In case of war, it would be wise to adopt a policy of sealing all working equipment and establishing armed guards to hold off newborn servicemen so long as the equipment continued to perform usefully."

COL. JORDAN T. GOULD, JR., USAF, Chief, Communications and Electronics Division, ARDC headquarters, also emphasized maintenance, pointing out that "the level of training of our maintenance personnel has not kept pace with the increasing complexity of our electronic equipment and systems, and there is little likelihood of closing this gap in the foreseeable future."

Both Colonel Gould and Mr. Noble felt that the road to maintenance simplification lies along the path of module packaging with a means for quickly isolating a defective unit and replacing it. Colonel Gould added that "if the module cost can be made low enough, then the throw-away module concept becomes feasible."

Colonel Gould declared that progress in electronics "has lagged the demands occasioned by the expanded role of airpower" adding that "the key to greater exploitation of some available weapon systems lies in the need for better electronic systems."

COL. RICHARD J. MEYER, USA, Chief, Research and Development Division, office Chief Signal Officer, likewise emphasized reliability, saying that "progress in components has been so rapid that our design engineers cannot keep up with the component development."

Pointing out that while the Army now has only one completely transistorized equipment in actual production, Colonel Meyer predicted that when others get into production in the next two years 5,000,000 transistors will be used, while within three to five years Army equipment will be utilizing 100,000,000 transistors.

GE Alcohol-Water Shot System Ups Jet Thrust

A device which improves the performance of the B-47 bomber and enables it to take off from shorter runways, was described to members of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a meeting 28 Nov. in New York.

M. K. Wolfson, manager of the General Electric Company's J47 engine project, said the device consists of a liquid injection system which introduces a mixture of alcohol and water into the plane's jet engines, thereby increasing power available for takeoff. He said the devices are now installed on the majority of the B-47's.

General Cook, USAF-Ret, Will Head AIA, Admiral Ramsey Stays As Consultant

Admiral Dewitt C. Ramsey USN-Ret, will become Vice Chairman of the Board of Governors and General Orval R. Cook USAF-Ret., President of the Aircraft Industries Association early in 1957.

These actions were taken by the Board of AIA at Phoenix, Ariz., 30 Nov. Admiral Ramsey also will act as consultant to the Association.

President Malcolm P. Ferguson, of Bendix Aviation Corporation, Detroit, Mich., was elected as Chairman of the Board for the period 1 Jan. to 30 June, 1957, and Whitney C. Collins, President of Northrop Aircraft, Inc., Hawthorne, California, was elected to the Chairmanship of the Board for the period 1 July to 31 Dec. 1957.

Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Collins will succeed C. W. LaPierre, executive Vice President of the General Electric Company and General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., President of the Convair Division of the General Dynamics Corporation.

RE-ELECTED by the Board of Governors were Capt. L. D. Webb, USN-Ret., as Vice President and General Manager of the AIA Western Region, and Col. Harrison Brand, Jr., USA-Ret., as Secretary-Treasurer.

General Cook, 58, USMA '22, prior to his retirement on 31 May, was Deputy Commander-in-Chief, U. S. European Command, a position he held since February 1954. From July 1951 until his assignment to the European Command, he served as the USAF's Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel at Air Force Headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Upon graduation from the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas in June 1939, he was assigned to the Engineering Section of the Production Division at the Army Air Forces' Materiel Center, Dayton, Ohio. By April 1942 he was chief of the section and became supervisor of the Eastern Procurement District, AAF Materiel Center, in New York City in November 1942. In May 1943 General Cook became Chief of the Production Division, AAF Materiel Command Headquarters, Wright Field, Ohio.

In June 1945 he joined the Far East Air Forces in the Southwestern Pacific and established an Air Force depot on Okinawa the following month to direct Air Force supply and maintenance activities in that area. After V-J day he was assigned to Japan to establish an air depot and to assume command of the Seventh Air Service Area. In January 1946 he assumed command of the Far East Air Service Command (later the Pacific Air Service Command) in Manila.

After service with the War Department General Staff starting in June 1946, General Cook was appointed Director of Procurement and Industrial Mobilization Planning at Air Materiel Command Headquarters in July 1948. A few weeks later he became AMC's deputy commanding general for operations and in September 1949 was named Director of Procurement and Industrial Planning at AMC Headquarters.

He and his wife, Mrs. Minna E. Cook, have three sons, Peyton, Orval and Benjamin. The Cooks reside at 510 Crossroads Drive, Falls Church, Va.

$25,000 AWARD TO NAVY SCIENTIST

NEW YORK CITY

Dr. William B. McLean, 42, Technical Director of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif., received a cash award of $25,000 under the Government's Incentive Awards Program for his key role in the development of the Navy's new air-to-air guided-missile SIDEWINDER. This is the highest monetary award ever made by the Government in recognition of an employee's superior accomplishment.

The award was presented to Dr. McLean at a dinner here on 5 Dec., sponsored by the American Ordnance Association. Presentation of the award was made by Admiral Arleigh Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, who was principal speaker at the dinner.

Defense officials pointed out that Dr. McLean earned this top cash award not only because of the impressive monetary savings to the Government, but also because the successful development of the SIDEWINDER guided missile is a highly significant and tangible contribution to our overall defense effort. The missile will be "widely used" by both the Navy and the Air Force.

RADM. F. S. Withington, USN, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ordnance, stated that Dr. McLean's efforts have saved the Government an estimated $46,000,000 the first year. He explained that at least $5,000,000 was saved through economies achieved in the development program and an estimated $41,000,000 in the production of SIDEWINDER missiles.

Manpower Deputy

Mr. Stephen S. Jackson, who has been Assistant General Counsel in the Office of the Secretary of Defense since May 1952, will become Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary (Manpower, Personnel and Reserve) on 15 Dec.

At that time, Deputy Assistant Secretary Henry A. DuFlon, who has been in the post for two years, will leave the Department.

Mr. Jackson, 56, has been with the Defense Department since October 1950 and has specialized in personnel matters.

Early in Mr. Jackson's legal career he became Referee for the Workmen's Compensation Bureau of the State of New York, and later served as a Justice of the Domestic Relations Court of New York City. During this period he established and directed the Bureau of Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency. He entered government service in April 1949 as a consultant to the Commissioner for Special Services of the Federal Security Agency.

Mr. Jackson received an A.B. from Holy Cross in 1921 and an LL.B. from the Harvard Law School in 1928. Mr. Jackson is married to the former Ruth Agnes Linson. They have two children, Martha Ann and Stephen S. The family resides at 3378 Gunston Road, Alexandria, Va.

Management Cuts AF Spare Parts $5.6 Billion

Better material management during the past five years has resulted in a reduction of $5.6-billion in requests for appropriations from Congress for Air Force spare parts.

Maj. Gen. Frederick J. Dau, Air Materiel Command's Director of Supply, told the Spares Study Group recently that the savings could be attributed to the "Hi-Valu" concept and modernization of materiel management. He said the money for aircraft spares requested of Congress had been reduced from 43 to 25 per cent of the total aircraft program since 1951.

The "Hi-Valu" concept, which was named by its originator, General E. W. Rawlings, Commander of AMC, puts management emphasis on better support of Air Force materiel at lower cost by strict controls, including rapid transportation and communications, on the two per cent of the items that account for more than half the dollar expenditures.

The Spares Study Group is a full-time management consultant-type organization staffed mainly by Air Force specialists in the various fields of logistics.

Reserve Promotion Study

Headquarters has established a special board to consider all aspects of the Reserve promotion system and its attendant problems.

Heading the board, which met for the first time on 4 December, is Capt. Allen Winbeck, USCG. Other board members are: Captains Ernest Fiedler, USCGR, and Irving Stevens, USCG; and, Lieutenant Commanders William Handy, USCGR, and Fred Wacker, USCGR.

Headquarters invites all officers, both Regular and Reserve, to submit suggestions and comments in letter form to the Commandant (PR) who will pass them onto the Reserve Promotion Board for evaluation and study.

Warrant Appointments

The three enlisted men shown below have been appointed to the temporary grade of warrant officer, W-1 (Radio Electrician), with effective dates of rank from 1 Dec. 1956. Joseph C. Gimbl, Wilton A. Hockenberry and Dallas W. Palmer.

Duty in 14th CGD

Headquarters advises officers and men who are ordered to the 14th District for isolated duty to refrain from asking where they finally will be assigned.

Such inquiries, Headquarters says, serve no purpose since the only reply the District can make is that the assignment will be to the Far East, Marianas, or Philippines Section, or to one of the Loran Stations in the Hawaiian or Marshall Islands.

On the other hand, there is no objection to officers and men ordered to the 14 CGD for non-isolated duty asking for a tentative duty assignment. This practice, Headquarters says, appears desirable in order that plans may be made in advance for shipment of household effects and transportation of families.

Electronic eyes for business

Closed circuit television by IT&T takes you anywhere, sees everything

A checker jots down boxcar numbers far across the freight yard . . . a bank clerk verifies a check signature . . . a pipeline supervisor reads a meter a mile away. This is the magic of private wire TV, another example of advanced concepts in visual telecommunication introduced by International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation.

Farnsworth Electronics Company, a division of IT&T, is engaged in research, development and manufacture of closed-circuit television systems and equipment . . . for the military and for industry, education, traffic control, security and law enforcement, telemetering, material handling, remote supervision and inspection, observation of hazardous operations, and many other uses.

IT&T scientists and engineers continue to demonstrate their leadership in electronics and communications.
